NEW ORLEANS, March 4.—Attaches of the German Republic took umbrage here Sunday at a pair of green gubernatorial pajamas, demanded an apology, got it and then fired a salute of 17
guns in honor of Gov. Huey P.
Long of Louisiana. The apology came after 24 hours of diplomatic strain.The Governor's raiment was an insult, he said.
The friend told the Governor,
who retorted: "What's the matter with 'em? I had on the green silk pajamas, took time to put on a pair of bedroom slippers and wore
the 17 gun salute given to me
by the State Banking Department for Christmas—what more do they want?"The case went to the jury at 4
p. m. following argument. Judge Hamilton's instruction on the point of verdict ranging from acquittal or a small fine or jail term to the death penalty.O'Leary's Version of Quarrel.
The former police officer, 46
years old, who resigned from the force
in 1919 and became a coal salesman, said he thought he knew one of the two women who were sitting at a table with Silvey in the saloon, spoke to her and sat down.
Then, he said, he recognized Silvey
as a man who was under police surveillance. "You're a copper,"
he said, "and I'm a coal salesman.""I went back and washed my face and started to go through the swing door," O'Leary related.
"Silvey called to me, 'Come back and let's bury the hatchet.'"
I went back and started to sit down.
He struck me in the face and cut my lip."I went back and washed my face again. When I got to the outside door I remembered my overcoat and went back to get it. I saw the hatchet. He threw a bottle at me and pulled a pistol out of his belt. I pulled my gun and fired two shots at him before he had a chance to shoot.""What did you do then?"
O'Leary's counsel asked.
"Then I took a lot of air," was the reply.O'Leary's story was corroborated
in detail by one witness, George
M. Creed, a truckpuncher, who said he was in the saloon with a friend and witnessed the quarrel and the killing. In rebuttal, the State prosecutor called a policeman who said he had not heard before that Creed
was in the saloon.None of the State's witnesses, including several policemen, made any mention of a pistol in Silvey's possession.Woman Witness Testifies.
Miss Catherine Penrose testified that she was at the table with Silvey and Miss Ida Black when a stranger, whom she identified in court as O'Leary, came over, said
"Hello, Irene," to Miss Black, sat down and ordered a round of beverage. A few minutes later, she said, Miss Black moved to the bar and Silvey and the stranger talked in low voices.She related that Silvey tossed his beverage in the face of the stranger, who went to a back room to wipe it off. When he returned, Silvey punched him in the face,
drawing blood, she said.O'Leary left the place, Miss Penrose related, and returned about 20 minutes later, firing two shots, fatally wounding Silvey.
Ezekiel Hoffman, an automobile mechanic, corroborated her testimony and also identified O'Leary.Miss Black declared she was at the bar, with her back turned, during the quarrel and the shooting.
She could not identify O'Leary. She had taken three or four drinks of whisky that afternoon, she said,
and did not have a good look at the stranger who had joined the party. He had bought a round of beverage, she said, and she had bought another.Saloonkeeper Barnett declared he was in a rear room when the quarrel occurred and in a telephone booth when Silvey was killed. He had noticed both Silvey and O'Leary in the saloon, he said, and had heard O'Leary cry, "He hit me."Police testified they arrested O'Leary in a house at 3528 Finney avenue, soon after the crime, and found a pistol, recently fired, under a mattress.EX-POLICEMAN, ON

WALLS OF JERICOSappers, Apparently at Work
Undermining Battlements
While Priests Blew Horns.By the Associated Press.
JERUSALEM, March 4.—Remains of a child sacrifice discovered by Sir Charles Marston's expedition in the walls of the ancient Biblical city of Jericho are thought to throw a significant light on a curious Bible verse not thoroughly understood heretofore.The verse, found in 1 Kings 16:34, reads: "In his days did Hiel the Beth-elite build Jericho;
he laid the foundation thereof in Abimeon, his first born, and set up the gates thereof in his youngest son, Segub, according to the word of the Lord, which he spoke by Joshua, the son of Nun."The expedition, headed by Prof.
John Garstang, has found many interesting things in the ruins of the city. One discovery was that of a charred beam underneath the wall. It was taken to suggest that when Joshua's sappers blew priests marched around the walls blowing each a ram's horn, workmen were busy undermining the walls.Other finds revealed continuous evidence of destruction and conflagration at the time when the Hebrews entered Palestine, about

FAIRLY COMFORTABLE NIGHTCondition Unchanged; Today Is Twenty-first Anniversary of His Inauguration.By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, March 4.—The condition of William Howard Taft was described today by his attending physicians as practically unchanged since yesterday. His nurse reported he had spent a fairly comfortable night.The noon official bulletin issued by Dr. Francis R. Hagner and Dr.
Thomas A. Clayton follows: "The condition of the former Chief Justice is unchanged since yesterday.
He is comfortable and continues to take a moderate amount of nourishment."Dr. Hagner added that Taft recognized those in the room about noon today and smiled as he murmured good-by to the physicians when they departed.His physicians think he may linger indefinitely unless hardening of the arteries bring about some quick change. They seem to regard this as likely.There was no police guard in front of the home for the first time in several days, and there were fewer visitors.Today was the twenty-first anniversary of Taft's inauguration as President of the United States, an inauguration especially memorable
because of a snow storm in Washington.Obtained Temporary Injunction.

thus far verified the existence of such a school at the times named.Case was permitted to take the examination, subject to the final result of the inquiry.The fourth inquiry is into the qualifications of another of the present candidates, Miss Ruth diploma from the high school in Henderson, Mo. The first inquiry made of the Henderson school authorities did not result in verification of her statement, but a further inquiry is to be made, and she was board last night, said she had been informed that high school diplomas, which would pass muster with the examiners, could be bought in Kansas City for 50 cents and that Federal Trade Board Accountant Also Tells of Discrepancies in Ohio Company's Figures.

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, March 4.—John H. Bickley, Federal Trade Commission accountant, testified today at the commission's inquiry into utilities financing that a discrepancy of more than $3,000,000 existed between revenues received for the sale of electric energy reported to the Ohio Public Service Commission and receipts shown on the books of the Ohio Power Co., subsidiary of the American Gas and Electric Co.

Bickley said the Ohio Power Co. in 1928 reported its revenues to the Ohio commission as $15,547,879. The commercial department report of the American Gas and Electric Co., Bickley said, showed the electric revenues at $15,502,480.

Bickley testified that the American Gas and Electric Co. reported 10 of 24 properties acquired by Ohio Power. The witness offered a computation of earnings realized by the Ohio Power Co. on the book value of common stock, including surplus of the company and earnings reinvested, for the years 1925, 1927 and 1928. He said in 1925 it was 35.5 per cent, in 1927 39.8 and in 1928 it had increased to 51.8.

Ernest R. Lucas, Trade Commission accountant, testified that fixed assets of the Indiana & Michigan Electric Co. and the Twin Branch Power Co. were "written up" $5,588,471 when they were merged as a subsidiary of the American Gas & Electric Co.

Lucas asserted the fixed assets of the two companies, which before the merger were $13,073,172, were increased to $18,661,643 afterward. The new stock issued exceeded the old in value by $5,588,471, he said. The Indiana Public Service Commission approved the merger and also permitted an issue of securities as requested by the holding company.

Chicago Has a Pay Day.
By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, March 4.—Teachers, policemen, firemen and every other municipal employee today received their pay, long delayed because of the city's empty treasury. Payment was begun late yesterday afternoon. The pay for School Board members was the first since Dec. 15. For teachers it was the first since Christmas eve.

GIRL, 18, SHOTS WOMAN, SAYS SHE PARTED PARENTS

Alamo, Ga., High School Student Fires After Meeting Her at Father's Filling Station.

FREED BY SHERIFF
AFTER SURRENDERING

Miss Marion Bullard Takes
Look at Victim in Car, Then Drives Away to Give Self Up.

By the Associated Press.
ALAMO, Ga., March 4.—Miss Grace McDaniels, 26 years old, of Chamblee, Ga., was shot yesterday by Miss Marion Bullard, 18, high school senior, who, police said, declared the wounded woman "took my father away from me."

"She will never get an opportunity to wreck another home," the officers quoted her as saying after the shooting last night.

Miss Bullard's father and mother have been separated more than a year. A divorce suit is pending. Miss McDaniels was taken to a Dublin, Ga., hospital for treatment of a bullet wound just below the heart. Physicians said they were unable to determine yet the seriousness of her wound.

The shooting occurred at a filling station operated by F. I. Bullard, the girl's father, who stood within a few feet of Miss McDaniels at the time she was shot. After the shooting, Sheriff H. N. Sams to whom the girl surrendered said, Miss Bullard walked over to the car, looked at Miss McDaniels then drove away. Miss Bullard's mother has a hotel here. The Sheriff allowed Miss Bullard to go home without placing charges against her.

"She slipped up on me," Wounded Woman Says.
By the Associated Press.
DUBLIN, Ga., March 4.—"She didn't slip up on me," Miss Grace McDaniels of Chamblee, Ga., said this morning in a local hospital when asked how she was shot yesterday in Alamo by Miss Marion Bullard, 18-year-old high school senior.

Miss McDaniels was too weak to talk much. When asked whether she had been friends, Miss McDaniels replied, "We used to be good friends."

Miss McDaniels drove to the filling station where the shooting occurred last night. When she saw that Miss Bullard was there, she drove away again, wishing to avoid her. Later, when she returned, Miss Bullard returned alone, stopped her car and fired at her. The first shot went wild, so Miss Bullard stepped from her car and coming from the right-hand side, fired a close range.

ON BOARD THE BARK CITY
OF NEW YORK, AT SEA, March 4.—The southerly gale which was sending the City of New York along its course to Dunedin at record speed yesterday had subsided this morning, but strong winds of varying intensity were blowing from the southwest.

According to Capt. Melville's dead reckoning, Admiral Byrd's flagship is making seven knots before the quartering wind and sea. This would place us in latitude 60.42 south, longitude 163.26 east at noon today, or 895 miles south of Tairāwhiti Head, N. Z.

The day's run was 162 miles, but an observation at noon yesterday showed the ship had made 179 miles in the previous 24 hours. Its best run since it left Dunedin on its voyage to the Barrier and return.

LINDBERGH PLANS TO MAKE GLIDER TEST FLIGHTS TODAY

He and Wife Arrive at Del Monte, Cal., for Experiments in Developing Motorless Plane.

By the Associated Press.
DEL MONTE, Cal., March 4.—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and Mrs. Lindbergh arrived here today from Hillsborough, where they had been guests of Thomas B. Eastland since Sunday.

Lindbergh's Bolus sail plane, the "Anne Lindbergh," with which he intends to make experimental flights on the Monterey Peninsula, arrived from San Francisco later, but rain appeared likely to prevent tests today. Jack Barstow, assistant to Hawley Bowler, holder of the American glider record, accompanied the glider to Del Monte. Lindbergh said he would not seek a new glider endurance record, but was interested solely in development of motorless flying.

LEAVES $1200 TO ORPHAN
Special to the Post-Dispatch.
QUINCY, Ill., March 4.—The will of Mrs. Minnie Logan Miller was found in a bag suspended from her neck when she was found dead yesterday afternoon by her ward, Eugene Miller, 17 years old. Eugene Miller was taken from a St. Louis orphanage by Mrs. Miller 10 years ago, but she had never adopted him.

Friends said the will provides that $12,000 be placed in trust for him. Mrs. Miller had large real estate holdings.

KILLED BY TRAIN VIOLA SENN.

CLARENCE SENN.

FUNERAL TOMORROW FOR GIRL
AND BROTHER KILLED BY TRAIN
Clarence and Viola Senn, of Edwinstown, fatally injured in auto accident.

Funeral services for Clarence Senn, 22 years old, son of Fred Senn, an Edwinstown contractor, and his sister, Viola, 17, who were injured fatally when their coupe was demolished by a passenger train at Hartford, Ill., Sunday night will be held in Edwinstown tomorrow afternoon.

They had attended a show with Auburn Thorp, of Hartford, and Miss Alma Lamb, of East Alton, and had taken their companions to their homes when, on the way to their own home, their car was struck. They died a few hours later in St. Joseph's Hospital, Alton.

Robbers in Stolen Auto.
The car used by the robbers was the property of Nellis Jeffrey, 4359 Oakwood street, and had been stolen from in front of Bevo Mill, Gravois and Morganford avenues. It was found abandoned early today at January and Loughborough avenues.

Three robbers, thought to be the same ones, had obtained $90 in a holdup 40 minutes earlier at a drug store at 1501 South Kingshighway.

Other holdups: Drug store, 902 North Garrison avenue, 450; Dew Drop Inn, 3555 Olive street, 1100; confectionery of William Hinton, 4355 Lee avenue, 115.

Theft of clothing and jewelry valued at $593 from the home of Dr. Fred H. Bierbaum, 3207 Palm street, was reported.

Two men accosted Mrs. Marie Clell, 14214 Cleary street, when she was leaving home to go downtown at 10 a. m. today and forced her back into the flat at the point of a pistol. They bound her wrists and ankles with rags and ransacked the flat, taking $30 in cash, a suit and an overcoat. Neighbors heard Mrs. Clell's screams and released her.

Ely Horlick, proprietor of a fruit store at 6547 Wabasha avenue, was slow in raising his hands when two men, one armed, entered at 9:45 a. m. today and one of them knocked him down. The robbers took $100 from the cash register and left in a waiting automobile.

PHYSICIAN SHOT DURING HOLDUP OF DRUG STORE

Dr. Jesse P. Townsend Felled When Running to Rooms Above Shop, 6955 Gravois, to Get Pistol.

Dr. Jesse P. Townsend, 6952A Gravois avenue, was shot by one of three men who held up the physician and four other persons in the drug store of Ambrose Bryant, 6955 Gravois avenue, last night.

Dr. Townsend, who has offices and apartments above the pharmacy, was shot as he was running up a stairway to obtain his revolver. He suffered a flesh wound, not serious, the bullet entering the left side of his back and emerging in front.

Besides Dr. Townsend, those held up were the druggist, Bryant, his wife, his sister-in-law, Mrs. Lee Bryant, and a customer, Stewart Walker.

"Mrs. Townsend and I had just escorted some friends downstairs," Dr. Townsend said today. "It was about 10:45 o'clock. Mrs. Townsend returned upstairs while I stepped into the store through a side door leading from my stairway."

Through Main Entrance.
A moment later the robbers came through the main entrance at the corner of Gravois and Blow. They ordered everybody to hold up their hands.

The robbers took a wallet containing $5 and lodge papers from Dr. Townsend, $10 from Walker and $190 from the store, including $30 of branch postoffice receipts.

One of the robbers, a dark, mean-looking fellow, had been watching him closely," Dr. Townsend said. "At first I thought it was all a joke and I knew the fellow, but on looking intently I saw he was a stranger."

"When he turned aside for a second, I slipped through the side door, which I had left open, and ran upstairs for my revolver. I was past the landing and more than half way up when I stumbled."

Daughter Sees Shooting.
The robber had followed me. Just about the time I stumbled, he shot me. My daughter stepped out from a bedroom and saw the shooting. She screamed. The robber did not fire again.

"I ran into my office, got my revolver and went to a window facing Gravois, hoping to get a shot at the robbers. I later learned they had their automobile parked around the corner on Blow street and escaped that way."

Dr. Townsend is 55 years old. His wound was treated at his own office by a neighborhood physician. The bullet, which struck the top of the stairway after passing through Dr. Townsend's side, is being saved by him as a souvenir.

NECKLACE VALUED AT $350,000 NETS ITS OWNER $7270

Napoleonic Jewels Belonging to Austrian Archduchess Bring $60,000—Agent Keeps $52,730.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
NEW YORK, March 4.—The Archduchess Marie Therese of Austria, a feeble old lady virtually impoverished by the war and tucked away in a remote spot of grandeur of a Hapsburg palace in republican Vienna, has received $7270 as the net proceeds of the Napoleonic diamond necklace she valued at $350,000, according to a cablegram received yesterday from Vienna police and passed on to Assistant District Attorney Hastings.

Col. Charles F. Townsend, her emissary, who sold the necklace here for $60,000 cash Feb. 11 and departed just before Baroness Anne Eysenwenger arrived from him the job of selling the jewels, wrote to the Archduchess Feb. 12 from Chicago. He told her he had sold the necklace for $60,000, according to the cablegram, inclosed a $7270 check and informed her the rest ($52,730) balance had been retained by him to cover his expenses. The whereabouts of Townsend and his wife, a writer, known as Princess Barontine, are unknown.

The Archduchess Leopold, grand-nephew of Marie Therese, has been called to the District Attorney's office to explain his part in the sale of the necklace. Although the young Archduchess admits he is not on good terms with the Archduchess, D. M. Michel, the jeweler, who purchased the necklace, and the lawyers who negotiated the bill of sale say they understood Leopold witnessed the sale as a representative of the Hapsburg family and gave his full approval.

Barnes Hospital and Kingdom House Bequeathed $1000 Each by Widow of Carpet Maker.

Mrs. Annie M. Kennard, 4 Portland place, who died last week, left the bulk of her estate to her son and three daughters, according to her will filed in Probate Court yesterday. Specific bequests included $1000 each to Barnes Hospital and Kingdom House, a Methodist Episcopal retirement home. Mrs. Kennard was the widow of Samuel M. Kennard, who was chairman of the board of the J. Kennard & Sons Carpet Co. No estimate of the value of her estate was available.

PRESS CHATS PLEASE HOOVER
WASHINGTON, March 4.—After a year's trial, President Hoover is pleased with the present method of contact between the White House and the newspapers of the country, but is ready to listen to suggestions for amendment. He called on the Washington correspondents today to propose any changes they might have in mind.

When he took office, Mr. Hoover ruled the "White House spokesman" out, and said whenever possible he would permit direct quotation of what he might say at the meetings with the correspondents. On some occasions he has authorized such quotation.

INDIANA GIRL FOUND SHOT TO DEATH IN THE STREET

In Front of Home of Married Man Whom She Had Been Intimate.

By the Associated Press.
MADISON, Ind., March 4.—Miss Alice Lee, 30 years old, died from a bullet wound last night shortly after she was found unconscious by Nathan Mayfield in front of his home here.

The young woman was dead when a physician arrived at the Mayfield home. A revolver was found near where she had fallen. The County Prosecutor and Coroner learned from Mayfield that he had met Miss Lee in front of his home and that he was keeping the appointment when he discovered her unconscious. They ascertained that Mayfield, married and the father of two children, had brought the girl, with whom he admitted carrying on a love affair for two years, from Mishawaka in his automobile. Authorities said she showed signs of approaching motherhood.

In the room which Miss Lee had just engaged, the authorities found letters, photographs, and a diary in which Mayfield was mentioned. Miss Lee was the daughter of Bruce Lee of Mitchell, and had formerly been employed at North Vernon. She wore a Franklin College pin and Versailles, Ind., high school ring.

A. N. SAGER, FORMER CIRCUIT ATTORNEY HERE, IS INDICTED Accused, as Defense Attorney, of Bribing Juror in Utah Lead Trial.

By the Associated Press.
NEW YORK, March 4.—Indicted by a Federal grand jury with two other defense attorneys for the bribery of a juror in the Utah lead trial, Arthur N. Sager, former assistant to the United States Attorney-General and former Circuit Attorney in St. Louis, requested an immediate trial. Today the cases were set for trial Friday.

The defendants pleaded not guilty and were held in $2500 bail each.

The true bill, which resulted from an investigation into a bribery, conspiracy and obstructing justice, contained eight counts charging Sager and the other defendants with bribing a juror in the Utah lead trial. Today the cases were set for trial Friday.

The State's testimony was that the automobile of Otto W. Koch of 3852A Kennerly avenue was stolen from his garage May 6 last, and found eight days later in a garage at 3815 West Belle place, where Piper had left it for repairs.

Piper was arrested when he came in and asked "Is my car ready?" Piper's defense was that a chance acquaintance, who he thought was the owner, had asked him to have the car repaired. He is 31 years old.

The jury deliberated two hours. Two ballots were necessary because some of the jurors objected for a time to the 25-year sentence as too severe.

REFUSES 2 YEARS AND GETS 25 AS HABITUAL FELON

John A. Piper Jr. Convicted of Stealing Automobile After Declining to Plead Guilty.

John A. Piper Jr. was convicted of stealing an automobile and being an habitual criminal by a jury in Circuit Judge Calhoun's Court last night. The penalty was fixed at 25 years in the penitentiary. Piper had refused an invitation to plead guilty to the first charge and accept a two-year sentence.

Twenty-five years is the maximum penalty for automobile theft. With the habitual criminal clause in an indictment, the trial judge is required to instruct the jury that if they find the defendant guilty with at least one previous conviction, it is their duty to vote the maximum penalty for the offense charged.

In the past, many juries have ignored this instruction and sometimes voted the minimum penalty. However, during the last year the tendency has changed. In virtually all cases involving the habitual criminal law, the jurors have voted either for acquittal or the maximum penalty.

Convicted of Robbery.
Piper's previous conviction was for a five-year penitentiary sentence was committed to Booneville Reformatory, where he was paroled.

In selecting jurors, Assistant Circuit Attorney Flynn made sure that the jurors understood the habitual criminal law and challenged those who said they considered it too severe.

HE TAKES TO THE AIR

Charles Edward McGinley

BOY, 4, ONLY PASSENGER
ON CROSS-STATE FLIGHT
Charles Edward McGinley, 4-year-old, who flew here from St. Louis recently as the only passenger on a biplane, just landed when he was asked if he had been scared.

"No scared," the boy exclaimed when the plane landed. No, sir, not a bit. Say, I saw the river two or three times. They've got one here just like they have in St. Louis." He was a bit lonesome though, he complained—the pilot wouldn't talk to him.

Aviators at Fairfax Airport said Charles Edward was the youngest person ever to make the air trip between the two cities.

Charles Edward is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John McGinley of 4140 Washington boulevard. Preparing to motor to Kansas City with her husband to bring the boy home, Mrs. McGinley explained that Charles Edward was so impatient to see his grandparents, Mrs. H. S. Ruyter, that he could not wait for his parents.

"My husband's company, the Auto Trunk Co., had a Kart-Ken plane here for the air show and when the pilot offered to take Charles to Kansas City, we let him go. I was a little worried, of course, but Charles wasn't and neither was his father. He has been up several times, and took his first flight last summer when he was only three years old. His father says he's a veteran now."

SAYS A. P. MOORE LEFT MRS. CARUSO $25,000

Newspaper Declares Stepdaughter of Late Ambassador May Contest His Will.

By the Associated Press.
PITTSBURG, March 4.—The Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph in a copyrighted story says the late Ambassador Alexander P. Moore, who died $25,000 to Mrs. Enrico Caruso, widow of the noted Italian tenor, in addition to a bequest of $100,000 to the Queen of Spain.

The will of the late Ambassador
has not been filed for probate.

In addition to the bequest to Queen Victoria of Spain and Mrs.
Caruso, the Sun-Telegraph listed
the following other bequests: Paul Alexander Livermore, namesake of the Ambassador and son of Jesse Livermore, New York, financier, $10,000; Dorothy Russell Calvin, daughter of Lillian Russell, and stepdaughter of the Ambassador, $1000; Mrs. Jesse Sutherland, for many years the Ambassador's secretary, $10,000; and an additional $100 a month; Mrs. Mildred A.
Martin, niece of the Ambassador, $400 a month for the remainder of her life; John K. Emge, former editor of the Pittsburgh Leader, $5000; J. Albert Grant, close business and editorial representative of Mr. Moore, $5000; Susanne West-ford Allen, sister-in-law, $2000;
Mrs. Sue M. Addy, sister, $200 a month and her present home here for the remainder of her life, and Lena C. Chapman, maid to Lillian Russell, $1000.

The Sun-Telegraph said it was understood that Dorothy Russell Calvin, the stepdaughter, would demand of the officers of the United Trust Co. executors, a copy of the will and that she would demand one-third of the estate. The newspaper said also that little could be learned here of a reported second contest of the will by a relative of the Ambassador residing in the West.

FEDERAL RECEIVER APPOINTED IN DUPO OIL ENTERPRISE

Nine St. Louis Investors Charge
William S. Avery Dissipated Assets of Firm.

J. D. Schellhardt of Dupo was appointed receiver for the unincorporated oil venture of William Sharron Avery of Odell, Ill., today
by Federal Judge Wham at East
St. Louis on petition by nine of 25
St. Louis men who invested $30,- 000 in the enterprise.

Although each of the four wells drilled produced oil, suits for $8000 for material and labor have been filed against some members of the syndicate, since Avery has dissipated assets, speculated and failed to pay the accounts, according to the petition.

Avery, who formerly operated in the Lawrenceville field, told members of the syndicate that he would incorporate as soon as they provided money for operation, the petitioners claim. They allege that he still is selling stock.

Those whose names appear upon the petition asking an accounting and sale and distribution of assets
are: Lawrence Ryll, who invested $3000; Joseph Weiss, $3000; Jerome Dollard, $1000; Robert C.
Nennert, $600; Adam Gelsert,
$300; Christ Krueger, $500; William Hermes, $300; H. A. Laeche, $200; and Herman E. Mann, $200.
Avery could not be reached.

VETERANS OF 3 WARS UNITE TO PRESS PLAZA PROJECT

Central Council Organized at Meeting at Barr Branch
Library.

A Central Council to represent organizations of veterans of the World, Spanish and Civil wars, with the immediate object of pressing the city for early completion of Memorial Plaza, which is to honor
the veterans of all wars, was formed last night at Barr Branch Library.

Organizations represented at the meeting were the Veterans of Foreign Wars, Disabled American Veterans of the World War, United Spanish War Veterans, American Legion and Marine Corps Club.
William F. Runge, commander of Santiago-Arbonne Post of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, presided.
Executive bodies of the various organizations are to consider the council plan, which contemplates action on various matters of veterans' interest besides the plaza.

SMITH'S SONS JOIN TAMMANY

Two Unanimously Elected When Proposed by Former Governor
NEW YORK, March 4.—Former Gov. Smith guided his sons, Alfred and Arthur, into his own political path last night by proposing and obtaining their election into the Tammany Society. Two hundred braves and eight sachems, presided over by John F. Curry, unanimously accepted the Smiths.

The young men will receive their initiation at the next meeting. The vote and ritual are secret, but Smith smiled at the roars of approval over his nominations in Tammany Hall. His sons were not present. Arthur Baldwin, millionaire lawyer and philanthropist,
was initiated into the Tammany Society at last night's meeting.

Popular Vote to Be Taken on Foreign Art Exhibit at Museum

Carnegie Institute Group of 253 Canvases to Be on Display Here From March 11 to April 21.

Art devotees of St. Louis will have an opportunity to select by popular vote the most interesting picture in the collection of foreign paintings from the Carnegie Institute exhibition, which will be shown at City Art Museum in Forest Park starting next Tuesday. The exhibit, comprising 253 canvases by 64 of the more prominent foreign artists, will remain at the museum until April 21.

Comparatively few pictures have been sold by the artists as a result of exhibitions at the St. Louis museum, and no cash prizes are offered. J. E. Musick, secretary of the museum, points out "The vote for the most popular picture offers an opportunity to give some recognition to the artists in another way," he said.

Ballots on which those viewing the exhibition may express their preference have been printed and will be obtainable at several places in the galleries.

Vote in Pittsburgh.

The vote for the most popular picture is an annual feature at the Carnegie Institute in Pittsburgh, Pa., where the collection is first shown. The honor was gained this year by an American artist, James Chapin, whose group entitled "Emmett, George and Ella, Marvin" won first place. Chapin's "Ruby Green Singing" was second in the voting. These pictures, being by an American artist, are not included in the group to be shown at the local museum.

Jean-Pierre Laurens, a French artist, ranked third with "The Son," a picture of a mother with a boy on her lap.

As usual, the critics and the laymen were in almost complete disagreement. None of the three pictures adjudged best by a jury of art critics found a place toward the front in the popular vote. The critics gave first prize to Felice Carena of Florence, Italy, for his large canvas called "The Studio"; second to William J. Glackens of New York, for "Bathers He Adam," and third to Georges Dufrenoy, a Frenchman, for his still life showing a vase and violin.

Following Laurens in the popular vote was Howard Somerville, an Englishman, who painted "In the Studio," a picture showing

FATALLY WHILE PLAYING GOLF

Wealthy Resident of Edwardsville Succumbs to Heart Attack at Gulfport, Miss.

Fred C. Gillham, wealthy Edwardsville resident and owner of extensive holdings along the Mississippi River near Gulfport, Miss., died of a heart attack while playing golf in Gulfport yesterday. He was apparently in good health when he started the round of play, but as he addressed the ball on the tenth tee, slumped to the ground, calling for a doctor.

Companions aided him to an automobile and drove to the clubhouse. Death occurred on the way. A coroner's jury returned a verdict of death from natural causes. Gillham, who was a bachelor, would have been 60 years old today.

Formerly a partner in the Gillham-Tate Motor Co. of St. Louis, he owned a half interest in the Miramar Hotel in Pass Christian, Miss., and a lodge at Shorecrest on the Biloxi River. His family settled in Madison County more than 100 years ago and figured prominently in its early history. He was a member of the Madison County Country Club, near Edwardsville, and of Masonic bodies in East St. Louis and Edwardsville, holding an honorary thirty-third degree rank.

He resided in the home of his brother, former Circuit Judge J. Frank Gillham, of Edwardsville. Another brother, E. F. Gillham, also of Edwardsville, and a sister, Mrs. R. E. Pierce, 7350 Melrose avenue, University City, wife of a retired Methodist minister, also survive him. The funeral will be in Edwardsville.

SOVIET IS TO TRY JEWISH RABBI FOR HIDING WHEAT

Seventeen More Synagogues Have Been Closed in Ukrainian Towns.

By Jewish Telegraphic Agency. MOSCOW, March 4.—The Kharkov newspaper Shtern says that the Jewish rabbi of Nevalatopol will go on trial soon on charges of hiding wheat in his house. The charges were brought by Communist workers of Kharkov sent to the village to supervise the collective farms.

Another group of workers in the Vinnytsa region reported they had discovered more than 100 gold rings hidden in the synagogues, and many silver articles, which they had taken because they belonged to private Jews who hid them to avoid paying debts.

Seventeen more synagogues have been closed in Ukrainian towns, including Belotserkov, Balta, Haisin and Olevak.

Found Shot Dead, Gun at Side.

NEWTON, Kan., March 4.—A shotgun wound in his left breast, a small gauge shotgun at his side, the body of R. L. Stewart, Santa Fe division storekeeper here, was found today in his automobile on a road a few miles from Newton. M. C. Martin, coroner, is investigating.

TOWN'S PURCHASE OF LIGHT PLANT
'ON TIME' UPHELD

Supreme Court on Banc Sustains Fayette, Mo., in Its Method of Acquiring Utility.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

A test case which some of the privatly owned electric light and power companies had hoped would aid in curbing any increase in the number of municipally owned electric plants in Missouri, was decided today favorably to the municipal plants by the Missouri Supreme Court on banc.

The ruling sustained a contract

by which the Fayette municipal plant purchased additional equipment on credit, without regard to the constitutional limit on the city's debt.

The contract was executed under a plan by which Fairbanks, Morse

& Co., an Illinois corporation, with offices in St. Louis, has been selling engines and other power plant equipment to municipal plants, on monthly payments, out of earnings or opening savings of the plants. The plan is such that the obligation incurred does not fall within the constitutional limitation on municipal indebtedness.

At least one other such suit is pending in the lower courts in

Missouri. Attorneys for the Missouri General Utilities Co., which is fighting a new municipal plant

at Salem, Mo., have filed a suit

in the name of a taxpayer to prevent Salem from completing a similar purchase of plant equipment from the same company. Salem has a suit pending in Supreme Court to oust the Missouri

General Utilities, because its franchise in Salem has expired.

Details of Commerce.

The city of Fayette, through an ordinance passed by its Board of Aldermen, in September, 1928,

contracted with Fairbanks, Morse

& Co. to purchase two engines and other equipment for its municipal electric plant for $60,200, to be paid in equal monthly installments,

over a period of six years.

The contract provides that the city is to pay from plant income

all expenses of efficient and economical operation of the plant.

Payments for the equipment,

amounting to $366.11 a month,

are to be paid only from the amount saved in the cost of producing electricity, compared with the cost with the former equipment. The contract provides the purchase price shall not create any general obligation of the city, that no property taxes shall be levied to pay it, and that no part of the price

shall be paid from any city funds

other than the specified income of the plant. The contract states it shall not in any way pledge the credit of the city.

In event of default, the company

is empowered to take back the machinery, in which it retains title

until the purchase price is paid.

Emerson lands 300-lb. Turtle, the Associated Press. S. MIAMI, Fla., March 4.—Gov. Emerson of Illinois hooked a 300-pounder yesterday while fishing with John B. Hertz, wealthy Chicago sportsman. The catch was a turtle, caught in the gulf stream as the party fished off the Hertz yacht Helene. Charles McCullough and Warren Wright were also in the party.

ST. LOUIS HUNGARIANS THROUGH WITH KAROLYI

This Is the Belief of Editor Who Opposes Count's Communist Followers.

Calman Kaldor, editor of the Hungarian weekly, St. Louis as Videke (St. Louis and vicinity), today declared his belief that his countrymen in and near St. Louis, except for a communist element, were "through with" Count Michael Karolyi, former President of Hungary, who has visited the city twice within two weeks.

"Count Karolyi's campaign against the Fascist Horthy Government has had just the opposite effect here from what he intended," Kaldor said. "Most of our people were against Horthy, and still are against him, but many would prefer Horthy to the communist element with which the Count has surrounded himself. If Count Karolyi should speak here again, I believe only a few of our people would go to hear him."

Kaldor said the local Hungarians would not again permit their hall to be used by the Anti-Horthy League, so long as communists remain in control of the league. He denounced the management of Sunday afternoon's meeting in the hall, 1921 South Ninth street, at which anti-communists refused to listen to two visiting speakers who sat with Karolyi on the platform. Kaldor was pleased with the outcome of the meeting, however.

"I have heard of the communists breaking into meetings and taking them away from the people in charge," Kaldor said. "But here Sunday it was the other way around. We took the meeting away from the communists. Fortunately, they had not ventured to invite the police to be present, or some of our men might have been arrested before the police, not understanding our language, could have found out what it was all about. That does not apply to me, for I waited my time and said what I had to say in one speech, but my friend, Michael Somogyi, and several others might not have fared so well if the police had been present, for they were actually disturbing the meeting. Well, it needed disturbing, and the majority of those present were with us when we had stated our case."

"The two men on the platform, Aurel Leitner of Chicago and Louis Kovacs of New York, are Communists, Kovacs being secretary of the Hungarian section of the Communist party, and Leitner being a writer for the Communist paper, Uj Elora, in which he wrote a long article attacking me. He is chief organizer of the Anti-Horthy League. When Count Karolyi saw that we would not listen to this pair, he tried, in his speech here, to smooth matters over. But when he spoke at Granite City, Sunday evening, he took a different tone. He said he had made great sacrifices for the cause, and that all Hungarians must follow him absolutely, and support the Anti-Horthy League."

"Well, we will not do it. Count Karolyi is not infallible, and we shall not follow him or his lost cause any farther. In saying that, I am not forgetting that he has really tried to help the Hungarian people, and has shown a democratic spirit unusual in one of the Magyar nobility. But he has made it impossible for us to stand by him. Most of our local Hungarians were in this country before the war, and we do not wish to be ordered about by any of Bela Kun's former lieutenants."

CHARLES GALLAGHER, PRINTING SALESMAN, DIES SUDDENLY

Succumbs to Clot on Brain First Day After Leaving Bed Following Operation.

Charles J. Gallagher, printing salesman for the Carondelet News and for 30 years a familiar figure at the City Hall, died at St. Luke's Hospital yesterday of a blood clot on the brain.

Mr. Gallagher, who was 63 years old, was operated on nine days ago for a stomach ailment. Yesterday he considered himself well enough to get out of bed and walk around his room. While he was moving about he fell, unconscious, to the floor and died a few minutes later.

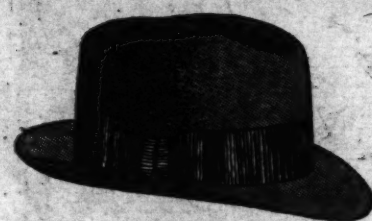

Mr. Gallagher was well known to officials of half a dozen city administrations, with some of whom he came into contact by virtue of his position as a printing salesman. He was regarded as a keen political observer.

For many years he was chief salesman for the Woodward-Tierman Printing Co., but resigned during a printers' strike eight years ago. Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Lydia Hardy Gallagher, daughter of the late James Hardy, once a liverman well known in local politics, and five sisters, Hannah, Winifred and Rose Gallagher, Mrs. James P. Keane and Mrs. Hugh H. Stewart.

Nearly eighty years of guidance by the pioneers of St. Louis—men of vision and of high principles—men high in the esteem of city, state and nation, is the treasured heritage of the present organization—

Business of the St. Louis Public Service Co. in the week of Feb. 27 to 28, inclusive, declined 8.25 per cent in number of fares collected and 1.63 per cent in revenue, as compared with the corresponding week of 1929.
Commenting on the report to the State Public Service Commission showing this condition, Stanley Clarke, president of the company, gave out the following statement:
"It is quite clear that the recorded decrease reflects business conditions in St. Louis rather than a decrease in the habit of riding street cars."
"The recent monthly report upon business, made by the Federal Reserve Bank for this district, is illuminating. While street car riding has been off about 10 per cent since Jan. 1, department store sales were 10 per cent below those of January, 1929, the dollar value of building permits was off 55 per cent, shoe manufacturing was between 20 and 30 per cent, clothing manufacturing was off 30 per cent, and sales of electricity by Union Electric were 15 per cent smaller in January, 1929, than in January, 1928."
"This latter figure is particularly significant because consumption of electric power denotes, closely, whether industry is running 'full time.'"
"Investigations by our company have disclosed many manufacturing plants running with curtailed numbers of employees. Approximately half of the 18,000 men employed in the building trades in St. Louis are idle. Building permits for the Federal Reserve District, which includes St. Louis, totaled the smallest amount in any single month for more than seven years."
"Reports indicate that slack business is not peculiar to St. Louis, because street car riding is off in other industrial cities to even a greater extent than in St. Louis."
The decline in fares collected for the eight weeks reported since Dec. 29 has been slightly more than 9 per cent as compared with a year ago. This is the period since the increase in price of 12-ride tickets from 50 cents to $1 and in children's fare from three to five cents.

HOOVER PRAISED AND ASSAILED IN SENATE ON ANNIVERSARY
Fess of Ohio Reviewer Achievements of First Year Hoover Attacks Labor and Farm Policies.
By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, March 4.—The first year of Herbert Hoover's administration was observed in the Senate today with a praise by Senator Fess (Rep.), Ohio, and a criticism by Senator Harrison (Dem.), Mississippi.
Fess reviewed the Hoover policies at home and abroad, saying the President's handling of the economic situation was "the most outstanding accomplishment of a President within our time."
Harrison congratulated Fess on his "audacity and nerve," and said that "if failure to solve the big problems is an achievement, it is satisfying labor and causing such policies to be initiated and administered as have brought labor to such a condition in this country today is an achievement, then this administration is a success."
Harrison added that "if there was any man in public life next to Herbert Hoover, who tangled legislation for the farmers when the McNary-Haugen bill was before us, it was Senator Fess of Ohio."
Senator Wheeler (Dem.), Montana, characterized Fess' speech as "most amusing and illogical."

PHILADELPHIA PUBLIC LEDGER SAID TO HAVE BOUGHT INQUIRER
Fifty-one Per Cent of Stock Sold to Company Headed by Cyrus H. K. Curtis for $8,000,000.
By the Associated Press.
PHILADELPHIA, March 4.—While no announcement has been made, it is reported here on good authority that the Philadelphia Inquirer has been bought by the Curtis-Martin Newspapers, Inc. It is reported that the Curtis-Martin Newspapers obtained 51 per cent of the stock for $8,000,000. The rest of the stock, valued at $8,000,000, is in the hands of the general public.
The total price put on the newspaper is $14,000,000. Cyrus H. K. Curtis is head of the purchasing company.
Since Curtis entered the daily newspaper field with the acquisition of the Public Ledger in 1913, he has bought other papers, and started two papers here. After purchasing the Public Ledger, he started the Evening Ledger. Then he bought the Evening Telegraph, which he merged with the Evening Ledger, and the North American, which he merged with the Public Ledger. He entered the tabloid field here with the Sun. This was a failure and was dropped. In 1924 he bought the Evening Post of New York. The Inquirer celebrated its centennial last year. Since the death of Col. James E. ATLANTA COUNCIL ORDERS SEPARATE GRAFT INQUIRY

One of Six Indicted Aldermen to Name Committee for Investigation of Its Own Members.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.
ATLANTA, Ga., Mar. 4.—The City Council will, with its own dirty linen in the graft scandal before the trial in Fulton Superior Court, of Council members and other department heads indicted on corruption charges, it was indicated today.

On the desk of Mayor Protem
J. Allen Couch, former street car conductor, today lay a resolution adopted by Council, 18 to 16, to investigate the six councilmen under indictment. This inquiry will be conducted by a committee of five who will recommend impeachment
where warranted.

Couch, who is alderman from the Fifth Ward and who is one of the six men under indictment, will be called upon to name this investigating body since Mayor J. N. N.
Ragland is now in St. Louis at the bedside of a sick daughter.

Councilmen Harry York, Jack
Hardy, W. E. Saunders and Charles Chiswood, all of whom are under indictment, voted for the resolution calling for the inquiry.
The other council member under indictment, Dr. J. E. Turner, was not in attendance at the meeting,
which was the stormiest in years,
coming upon the heels of the grand jury indictment Saturday night of 20 Atlantans and accusation on grave charges of other persons in public life.

New Inquiry Under Way.
Meanwhile, at the Court House,
a new grand jury is proceeding
with the graft investigation which Solicitor-General Boykin declared had not scratched the surface, and attaches of his office laid plans to try the first of the indicted group
this month.

City Clerk Walter Taylor, who has held that office since 1911, probably will be the first to be placed on trial. Taylor is accused of 16 offenses branded as bribery,
one allegation being that he paid
C. G. Allen, former Council member, $400 to influence Allen's vote in council on a proposal to allow the power company to remove street car tracks from Central-avenue. Allen was a witness before the grand jury, which had promised immunity to everyone who would give it evidence.

Another count in the indictment charges that Taylor paid Acting Mayor Couch a sum of money to influence the latter's vote on a measure involving the licensing of poolrooms, while in a joint bill returned against Taylor and Fred Wilson, politician and clothier,
there is the allegation that the two men conspired to have the city of Atlanta pay $52,000 for a portion of the new city hall site, whereas owners of the site received only $48,000, the indictment charging that Taylor and Wilson obtained
the $5000 "take-off."

System of Alleged Rebates.
A system of alleged rebates paid to Jack White, business broker and partner of Harry York, indicted Councilman, figures in a joint bill, returned against City Purchasing Agent W. P. Price, White and York. The indictment sets up in great detail a scheme whereby the city is alleged to have paid $2.50
a gallon for insecticides which were sold to Fulton County, by the same company, for $1 a gallon,
as the result of an alleged conspiracy between the three men, the rebate being paid White.

Similar rebates paid to White on the purchase of automobiles
for the city are alleged in the same bill, while in a separate indiction against York, alleging that he sought to become corruptly interested in a city contract, there is the charge that he sought to have the city pay $4250 for an ambulance which the company had offered to sell for $2500. The deal fell through when newspapers announced the investigation of a city park purchase. York also is charged with bribery in another bill, involving six separate allegations.

Accused of Accepting Bribes.
Roy D. Warren, former Board of Education member, is accused of accepting a bribe to vote for the purchase of real estate adjacent to a city school, while Dr. J.
E. Turner is accused first of larceny of certain lumber from the city and also of having his automobile repaired free of charge by city garage employees.

Indictment of Mayor pro tem.
Couch is based on the allegation that he sought to become corruptly
interested in the city's purchase of certain automobiles from a suburban company, the special presentments returned charging that he sought $200 from the automobile company in compensation for his services.

Richard Shoup, real estate man who gave the grand jury information on which indictment of City Clerk Taylor and Fred Wilson were based, was indicted for perjury on the ground that he "changed" his story. The presentment alleges he testified first that $18,000 profit from certain properties sold to the city were split between himself, Taylor and Wilson, and later, "after" Wilson had refreshed his memory, he testified that he and Wilson split the money and Taylor received none.

Ben Maswell, another real estate dealer, was indicted for perjury because of alleged conflicting testimony given before the grand jury.
Councilman Saunders was indic-

ed on the charge that he accepted
a $500 bribe to vote for the city's purchase of a park tract and also accepted $100 to vote for remission of an assessment tax against another piece of property.

Councilman Chase Wood, oldest member in point of service and age, was indicted on the charge
that he used city material for private benefit.

Councilman Jack Hardy was indicted for larceny, the allegation being that he conspired to defraud
the city on a $75 pay item for a laborer.

The grand jury in its special presentments also condemned three Councilmen for accepting loans from outside interests which had not been repaid; demanded the resignation of City Clerk Taylor.

charged that Taylor had manipulated election eligibility lists for his own interest to elect certain candidates; and declared that a pestiferous plague hovers around City Hall by reason of political al-tercades demanding and receiving unreasonable and excessive fees to handle matters pertaining to city contracts.

It also charged that "Ragland-Bottoms," a small farm owned by the Mayor, had been worked by city trucks and tractors and city
workmen had ploughed the ground for planting, the tractors being supplied with gasoline from city trucks. It asked the Mayor to show whether he had made settlement with the city for these items
and deplored such work as a bad precedent.

FRECKLES

March is the time to get rid of those ugly, rusty spots.
Do you know how easy it is to fade
out homely, rusty-brown freckles so that no one will ever call you Freckle Face? Do you know how to protect your sensitive complexion from the damage caused by March sun and wind?
Simply get a jar of Othine Double Strength, and a few nights' use of this dainty white cream will show you how easy it is to rid yourself of freckles and regain the fair, lovely,
soft, milk-white skin that is your natural birthright.
March sun and winds have a strong tendency to bring out freckles,
and as a result more Othine is sold during this month. Be sure to ask for Othine Double Strength, at any drug or department store. Othine is always sold with guarantee of money back if it does not satisfy.

ACCIDENT VERDICT IN KILLING OF MAN
BY MOTORCYCLE

Witnesses Testify. Owen
Edgar, 75, Walked Across Street With Signal Lights Against Him.

A Coroner's verdict of accident
was returned today in the death
of Owen Edgar, 75 years old, 2453A Caroline street, who was killed
when struck by a motorcycle yesterday noon as he was crossing Olive at Eighteenth street.

Witnesses testified that Edgar attempted to cross the street while automatic traffic signals were set for east and west traffic and that the rider of the motorcycle, Howard Brimmer, 4184 Shaw avenue,
was proceeding east at a moderate speed. Edgar suffered fractures of the skull, pelvis and both legs.
Injuries suffered Sunday night
when an automobile in which he and three companions were riding overturned at Rock Hill and Gravois roads, caused the death last night at St. Anthony's Hospital of William T. Winkler, 20, a mechanic of 611 Pocahontas avenue, Webster Groves.

Winkler suffered fractures of the skull, right arm and both legs,
when the machine, driven by Fred Edens, 8227 Delmar boulevard,
skidded and overturned. Edens, Miss Isabel Buse, 2701 Hydraulic avenue, and Miss Mary Ann McGhee, 204 Greeley avenue, Webster Groves, were cut and bruised.

Four women were injured last night when the automobile in which they were riding overturned
in front of 312 North Kingshighway after being sideswiped by another machine, the driver of which did not stop. The women, who were taken to Barnes Hospital by a fireman, were: Mrs. Emma Bittner, 2640 Arthur avenue, Maplewood, driver of the machine, lacerations; Mrs. Emma Lindsey, 1221 Missouri avenue, East St. Louis, possible skull fracture; Mrs. Hattie Flaherty, 2148 Walton avenue, Maplewood, fractured spine, and Mrs.
Jerome Flaherty, 2145 Walton avenue, lacerations.

SUSTAINS HEALTH BOARD IN REVOKING OF LICENSE

Supreme Court Holds State Group Acted Within Rights in Case of Dr. E. E. Ball.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

Action of the State Board of Health in revoking the physician's license
of Dr. E. E. Ball of Excelsior Springs, in November, 1926, for unprofessional conduct in soliciting patients for a sanitarium he conducts in Excelsior Springs, paid runners and agents, was sustained today by the Missouri Supreme Court en banc.

The decision reversed a ruling of the Caldwell County Circuit Court, which had set aside the board's finding and ordered it to restore Ball's license, upon an appeal by Ball for review of the board's action. The case reached the Caldwell County Circuit Court through a change of venue from Clay County. Evidence was submitted at the board hearing that Ball employed paid agents and runners to meet all trains entering Excelsior Springs, to solicit patients for his sanitarium. Ball contended the agents were not employed by him personally, but by the Health Culture Co.,
a corporation, controlled by Ball.
Judge William F. Frank, who wrote the opinion, overruled numerous defense claims of procedural error in the hearing by the board and in the formal record of its findings. He held that in an investigation by the State Board of Health technical rules of procedure, applicable to judicial trial, need not be a flaw as go ac cu sa re hy.

DR. WILSON EXPLAINS SPEECH

Says Talk on Liquor Drinking Was Misinterpreted.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, March 4.—Dr.
Clarence T. Wilson, executive secretary of the Methodist Board of Temperance, Prohibition and Public Morals, says a speech he made Sunday night at Philadelphia was misinterpreted. He had been quoted as saying prohibition was not designed "to keep you and me
from drinking," which, the quotation added, "is a matter for our personal tastes to decide."

"I said," Dr. Wilson explained,
"the private appetite is controlled
by sentiment, judgment, education,
home training, religious standards
and by the exercise of moral conscience on the will. If the people are still drinking, that may not be the fault of prohibition. If I drink liquor I have violated the principle of total abstinence, but I have not shown that prohibition is a failure. If I sell liquor I have violated prohibition, but I have not proved that total abstinence is a failure. The two movements, though both a part of the temperance reform, are totally distinct."

PHYSICIAN SLAIN IN OFFICE

By the Associated Press.

CLEVELAND, O., March 4.—Dr.
A. P. Scully, prominent Cleveland physician, was shot to death in his office last night. His body was found by another physician. Dr.
Scully's head was battered, police said, from blows with a butt of a pistol, but the bullet wounds in the left side caused death. Dr. Scully was a bachelor and had practiced in Cleveland for about 25 years.
He was 60 years old.

REM adopted by whole family

The Paddock family of 322 Glid-

friends of theirs one winter when one of the children developed a bad cough, the result of a cold.
Her friends suggested to Mrs.
Paddock that she try REM, and that's what she did. "We got some
at the drug store," says Mrs.
Paddock, "and it stopped the cough right away. I was so well pleased with it that I've never been without it in the house since.
It only takes a few doses of REM
to check a cough and that's one of the nice things about it. Thelma and Herbert—in fact all of us—have used it at different times." Once a member of a family tries REM, it's the family cough rem-

NAVAL DELEGATION HEADS PLAN EARLY PLENARY SESSION

Program Being Blocked Out
to Get Sessions Into Full Stride When French Return to London.

TWO GRATIFYING
DECISIONS FOR U. S.

Only Obsolete Destroyers Will Be Taken From Coast Guard—Point
Gained on Training Cruisers.

By the Associated Press.
LONDON, March 4.—The naval conference began to get back into stride today, with a meeting of the heads of the delegations at St.
James's Palace, at which a program
was blocked out to be followed when the French returned.

Ambassador Fleuryau represented France and Ambassador Hugh
W. Gibson acted for Secretary Stimson, who is ill. The others at the meeting were Prime Minister Mac-Donald, former Premier Wakatsuki, chief of the Japanese delegation, and Dine Grandi, Italian Foreign Minister.

It was decided that a plenary session could best deal with the work of the experts, which includes solution of the global and category tonnage problem and a report on the special and exempt classes of vessels upon which agreement has been reached. With this in view, the heads of the delegations will meet again Friday and set a date for a plenary session. It is hoped the French delegation will be here by Friday's meeting.

Pending Friday's meeting, the expert committees will be in full swing. Tomorrow the experts will start on the subject of submarines with the questions of the political side of humanization of the use of submarines and tonnage.
Tonnage will be taken up first.

The so-called first committee, which includes representatives of all the delegations, will meet Thursday to consider the expert committee's report on special and exempt classes. The purpose of this will be to get ready a report for the plenary session.

The next step in solving Japanese problems will be taken today,
when Ambassador Matsudaira and Prime Minister MacDonald are scheduled to hold a long conference at the House of Commons.
After the morning meeting, the British Prime Minister had a long conversation with former Premier Wakatsuki at St. James's Palace.

Coast Guard Vessels.
Experts attached to the conference are understood to have decided that ships, with one exception, employed by the United States Coast Guard to combat running activities will not be included among the vessels subject to any naval limitation treaty reached here.

Destroyers loaned to the Coast Guard by the navy will not be exempt. Twenty-five of these ships, according to the experts' decision,
will be ranked in the destroyer
class and be subject to such limitation restrictions as are imposed here.

The decision regarding the running fleet was gratifying to the American delegation, who had hoped to exclude the destroyers also, since,
it was contended, most of them
are obsolete.

U. S. Wins a Point.
In the special ship discussion,
the Americans are said to have won a point from Japan on the matter of training cruisers. Japan has seven of these training ships, which the American suggested was too many in the exempt class. The Japanese are understood to have agreed to retire two of these from the special ship classification.

Both the Japanese and American delegations continue to shroud conversations at St. James's Palace and Ambassador Matsudaira
in the Japanese-American big ratio with secrecy.

Conference observers here generally have come to expect a naval limitation treaty from the conference, which, since it will involve American parity with Great Britain, probably will entail some additional naval construction. Particularly will this be the case, if France keeps her naval requirement figures at their present level.

Home of Stimson.
The cold from which Secretary Stimson has been suffering for several days has grown worse, preventing his remaining for two more days at his temporary residence at St. James's.

Captain M. E. Higin's American naval doctor, who has been treating the ill of the delegation, made a trip to St. James's today. Captain Higin treated Admiral Hillyar T. Pe-rins prior to his departure last week on the Berengaria for the United States. Captain Higin said

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

England and France.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

How grotesque from one point of view is the naval conference. Behold the delegates meeting with all the engaging manners of real friendship and yet basing all their elaborate estimates on the contingency of war with one another. And this recognition of war makes the conference also tragic. Publicly and officially all the Powers have sworn to war and yet its grim specter dominates every discussion. This specter is the common enemy of the world which peace lovers everywhere should strive to exorcise from international relations. To the well-informed war between England and the United States is too improbable for consideration.

And what of England and France? They also are natural allies. More than 100 years have passed since England fought not the French but Napoleon. They fought as allies in the Crimea and except for the Fashoda episode they have remained good friends. Edward VII deepened this friendship into an entente. English sentiment has been fostered by the alliance. France, after her defeat by Germany in 1870, sought security through a covenant with Russia, but England supported her claims on Morocco and risked war over Agadir. In the great war their common safety made them allies and at Versailles England resigned Syria to France although it was English and Arab blood that won it from the Turks.

To do this the English faced a most disagreeable dilemma: friendship with France or broken pledges to the Arabs. She would not risk a serious breach with her old ally. And by making Faisal King of Iraq she did her best to satisfy the aspirations of the desert tribes who under Lawrence were to have been freed from the yoke of the British. The nation that crushes France will hold the hegemony of Europe and experience has taught England that she cannot tolerate a hegemony. Here then are two natural allies, peaceful neighbors for over 100 years, trying to think of each other as enemies. How absurd!

"Breaking Up Radical Meetings"
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch
THANKS for the editorial on "Breaking Up Radical Meetings." I've been hoping you would say just this.
EDNA GELHORN.

A Remarkable Alibi.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

NOW that the Ryckoff investigation is completed we have a case that is more than a mere alibi. It falls far from an alibi. It looks like a greyhound race track between Clara and Goodfellow, Roosevelt place and St. Louis avenue. Every person with a 25-foot lot was taken to the city hall. It is a double what it should be. When you ask at the City Hall they tell you they can't help it.

We invite the people of St. Louis to come out and see it. It is something new in the line of alibi. They surely put something over on us.

Parking on City Hall Grounds.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

ONE of the show places of any city to be pointed to with pride, should be the City Hall and buildings which form the seat of municipal government. To accomplish this very purpose, St. Louis has planned to spend many millions of dollars. Naturally these spots of beauty are sought for by most visitors to the city.

I should like to portray the impression which was indelibly stamped on my mind, on looking over the City Hall site. Much of the people's money is being spent each year to improve the appearance of the surrounding grounds, yet much of this effort and money is completely hidden and the remaining portion open to view is completely overshadowed by the all day parking of City Hall employees' cars on every available foot of walk, driveway and adjoining lawn on the eastern exposure.

Why should city employees be permitted to clutter up the public walks, driveways and lawns of the City Hall when parking facilities are nearby at a nominal charge? Employees of most private organizations have the same thing to contend with and make the best of the situation.
OUT-OF-TOWNER.
Belleville.

Ira Cooper.
To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

Y OOPER was a gem. Little was said but its implications packed a wallop. Every Negro in St. Louis, even those of the underworld—whom Sergeant Cooper has relentlessly hunted—applauds the splendid tribute you paid to his police prowess. We have noted several editorial comments of this kind within the last few months in which you stressed fair play to our group.
Please accept this little note of appreciation in behalf of thousands of Negroes who read and appreciate, but who hesitate to try to express their gratitude in a letter.
Executive Secretary, Urban League.

MR. HOOVER AND THE PRESIDENCY.

Mr. Hoover completed today his first year in the White House. We do not entirely agree with the appraisal of him in the presidency reproduced on this page from The Nation. Nevertheless, it reflects a point of view detached from parties or political expediency.

Mr. Hoover is the first engineer to occupy the White House, as he is the first commercial expert to hold that office. He has displayed many of the qualifications and most of the disqualifications attaching to his training. His tendency to solve public questions by assigning them to boards or commissions is what might have been expected, nor has his unfamiliarity with political and intellectual questions been surprising. It was as an economist that he gave his saddle horses to the Army and handed the Mayflower over to the Navy. It was as a commercial expert that he reorganized our consular system in South America, exposed the great system of inland waterways, stood by Mexico through the Echeverria revolt, and launched his farm relief movement. His purpose in all these and similar moves was to improve our foreign and domestic markets and to balance the national economy. This is the Mr. Hoover the world knows, the man who fed Belgium during the World War. It restores to the White House a quality of large-mindedness that has been wanting ever since Mr. Wilson was President.

It is in this field that Mr. Hoover is soundest, albeit his failure to stem the rising tide of business depression and unemployment showed he could not perform miracles. Even so, he acted with a promptness and intelligence that commanded the admiration of business men and probably did more good than we realize. It is too early to say that his farm plan will succeed; the influences against the Government in business, even when it undertakes to secure for so great an industry as agriculture a fair share of the nation's wealth, are already making themselves felt. It is also too early to call his farm plan a failure. It would be a great misfortune to the nation if it were a failure. That only a peaceful Mexico can develop its maximum use to us as a foreign market is undebatable, as it is certain that only by adopting our business methods to those of Latin America can we fully avail ourselves of that great market.

The inland waterways which Mr. Hoover foresees as a benefit to agriculture are perfectly sound. Congress, thanks partly to him, is convinced of it. It would also be a gain for the Government if its departments were more compact and closer related. To put us in the position of refusing to attempt control of the seas when we might have done so because of the plight in which the war left Great Britain, and to assume for us the enlightened position of being "willing to go as low as anybody else will go" in reducing naval armaments, was one of the finest moments of his history. It was a concession to peace for which we will always have Mr. Hoover to thank.

On his political side Mr. Hoover is less happy. His expectations of the London conference for the limitation of armaments do him great credit; but the conference itself has proved him an idealist in the great field of international politics. His declaration that food ships should be made immune from attack or interference in time of war was on a par with Mr. Coolidge's enthusiasm for the treaty that outlawed war. Neither ideal stands up against the hard realities. It is doubtful if Mr. Hoover's determination to withdraw the Marines from Haiti is a practicable idea, much as it is to his credit. Certainly his own appointments have already shown how impracticable was his intention to purify the selection of Federal Judges. His expectation that a special session of Congress could be confined to limited tariff revision for the benefit of agriculture and a few needy domestic industries displayed an almost appalling misapprehension of how tariffs are made. It also showed in Mr. Hoover a surprising unrealism of the political expectations which went with the munificent support given his candidacy by the tariff barons.

In the intellectual field Mr. Hoover has shown an even greater incapacity. His assertion before the directors of the Associated Press that all laws are alike, an absurdity he has since repeated, has greatly lessened his stature as a political scientist. The whole weight of history is against such a postulate, and in advancing it Mr. Hoover brought down upon himself widespread and indignant dissent. He was happier in his charge that he who traffics with criminals, obviously meaning one who buys liquor from bootleggers, is not a good citizen, an equal absurdity for which he has been criticised by men in all walks of life. He seems not to realize that only by refusing to acquiesce in unjust laws can the citizen defend himself against tyranny. Not to see that only by refusal to respect such laws can the citizen preserve his freedom is more than a defect in Mr. Hoover. It has deprived the country of a discriminating spokesman upon this grave issue at a time when it greatly needs to be told why we have so much crime in the United States and what can be done about it. That he regards prohibition as an irrational issue which time alone can settle does not relieve him from the obligation to preserve his intellectual integrity instead of lecturing his peers in such childish fashion.

Such has been Mr. Hoover's first year, a year which has presented even more reciprocal problems. That is, if the country has become a problem to the President, the President has in turn become a problem to the country. He is more disposed to paddle about in a sea of troubles than to take up arms against them.

TWO RADICAL MEETINGS.
Several thousand circulars were distributed in St. Louis last week announcing a Sunday mass meeting called by the Young Pioneers of America, a junior red flag organization. Nobody tried to stop the meeting from being a huge success, but it proved to be a dud. Only about 20 children attended. Speakers said some severe things about the Boy Scouts, criticised the capitalist regime and took up the matter of overthrowing the Government. The Government still stands at Centennial, Ill., as I. W. W. organizer announced a meeting. The Mayor and Chief of Police sprang nobly to the city's defense. They dignified the matter by issuing "official and final notice" by telegram that no such meeting could be held. A crowd assembled at the meeting hall, hammer on the locked doors, saw the police on guard and went away wondering what esoteric mysteries had been withheld. And so Centennial was saved.

The I. W. W. organizer now has something definite to talk about when he does manage to get a hearing somewhere. The orators of the Young Pioneers are not so lucky; they have only strained vocal cords for their effort. Centennial not only has denied its citizens the constitutional right of peaceful assembly, but at the same time has made a martyr for the radicals. The cause has been marvellously advertised to Centennial, just as police in other cities by similar tactics have put it on the front page. The two meetings furnish a perfect study in contrasts, showing just what encourages the radical movement and what discourages it.

THE MAYOR'S BITTER PILL.

President Hoover's First Year.

Anniversary of inauguration finds little accomplished toward solving nation's social and economic problems; industrial depression continues, unemployment greater, tariff and prohibition debates go on; Farm Board and Haytian Commission praise-worthy; President has shown ineptitude as leader; should declare policies frankly.

From the Nation.

MR. HOOVER'S first 12 months are drawing to a close, with many storm clouds upon the horizon. Some questions are inevitable. What achievements has he to show for the first year of his administration? What quality of leadership has he developed? What are the prospects for the remainder of his term? What constructive acts have been recorded since his accession Mr. Coolidge's own rocky road to the White House? Among his most commendable acts was the establishment of public utility for tax refunds larger than $20,000, in which case he overruled his own Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Mellon, and his own predecessor, Calvin Coolidge. Again, he wisely withdrew all oil lands from leasing save where it had been made mandatory by Congress.

On the other hand, his proposal that the United States turn back to the several states 190,000,000 acres of public lands to be managed and later sold, has thus far fortunately fallen upon deaf ears. His admirable appointments to the Indian Bureau and to certain other offices seem to us to have been more than offset by bad judicial appointments and by his selection of business men without previous experience for the highest diplomatic posts in Europe. He has much improved the relations of the President to the press by abolishing the subterfuge of the unofficial spokesman of Calvin Coolidge, returning to the historic policy of issuing statements in his own name, and accepting responsibility therefor. Finally, in the field of foreign affairs he has yet to lay before Congress his proposal that this country enter the World Court on the modified terms accepted by the signatories thereto, and he has most commendably declared that he does not wish this country represented by Marines abroad, notably in Haiti.

The fact is that Mr. Hoover has not added a cubit to his stature as a leader or as a statesman. He has not only been entirely destitute of the necessary skill and persuasion to obtain a worth-while legislative program; he continues to be amazingly inept in his relations with other public men—witness the few real friends he has in Congress and the unseemly haste with which he appointed Mr. Hughes Chief Justice the minute that Mr. Taft's resignation reached him, dismissing Mr. Taft with a brief and utterly inadequate letter. Here lies his greatest weakness and his greatest danger.

It is not difficult to be a departmental head and to achieve much by constant conferences. No President can carry on in that way. Commissions may help him to share the labor of getting at the facts, but in the end the President himself must bear the responsibility and be courageous and forthright in declaring his policies and defending them. If the Massachusetts election is anything of a guide, it is apparent that the public is strongly of this opinion.

On top of all this, Mr. Hoover has received the news that in the only clear-cut contest for the House of Representatives since his accession Mr. Coolidge's own rocky road to the White House? Among his most commendable acts was the establishment of public utility for tax refunds larger than $20,000, in which case he overruled his own Secretary of the Treasury, Mr. Mellon, and his own predecessor, Calvin Coolidge. At Bowie, Laurel, Havre de Grace, Belmont, Saratoga, there is no more familiar figure than this medium-sized, stalwart man. Racing fans have come to look for him at these places. His pleasant face and Virginia accent are known to them all. He is a retired Rear Admiral of the United States Navy now. And horses have become his hobby.

Though he has never owned more than a "modest string," his reputation in the turf world is great. It was his My Own that captured the Saratoga cup and was first substitute to Zev when that famous horse had Papyrus in the international contest of 1925. And it was Admiral Grayson who bred Saxon, one of the greatest horses of his time.

ADMIRAL GRAYSON pursues his hobby with the same care and scientific accuracy that he exercised in his profession. His stables in the Virginia hills near Washington are small but the occupants are aristocrats.

He has little interest in a horse whose pedigree is not pure. When his makes a selection, it is not the mere sportsman who chooses, but the scientist. There is never in his stables a horse by the name of Bright Knight, of whom the Admiral expects much. He is from the stables of Lord Astor of Gland and his pedigree is an unbroken strain.

Natural is his love for horses and racing. Great is his dislike for reckless betting. He is on record as having said: "There is enough excitement in my opinion, to get a horse ready for the race, to see him away at the barrier, and to win or lose the purse, without risking additional money."

Not that he is averse to making a "bet bet." But if he does, it is usually when his horses are not running.

HE distrusts tips on races. There is no definite reason. Once he and Senator Ollie James of Kentucky were at the track. Someone gave the Admiral a hot tip on a horse named Sleepy Sam. He promptly put $50 "on his nose."

Sleepy Sam won, paying odds of 15 to 1. The Admiral turned to the Senator to receive his thanks and congratulations. He found a gloomy one. Asking why, he was answered: "If you had only whispered louder, I'd have bet $100."

Unlike most followers of the track, Admiral Grayson has few of its superstitions. The nearest to one is his firm belief that a horse should be correctly named. He once owned a horse named Hoo, which ran second in the Prekness, second at Belmont and at other tracks.

Life as an Art

By Isaac Goldberg. (Stratford.)

IN MANY ways Havelock Ellis has contributed to the creation of a new disposition in the intellectual world. Probably no other single thinker of his generation has done more toward clarifying controversial problems and riding men's minds of prejudices and bigotry. Isaac Goldberg, the first authorized biographer of Mr. Ellis, has dedicated the present volume to him. It bears evidence throughout (not only in the title) of the influence which the master has had upon his disciple. Particularly in the section "The New Immortality," this is manifest. However, the book is far from being a mere eulogy of what has already been said; it is, perhaps more than anything else, a synthesis of the best current thought—as well as being an approach to life and the arts.

The author's point of view is noteworthy. It is essentially this: "Life and the arts are viewed as a process of continuous reintegration—as a shedding of irrelevant and a constant readjustment to a new mental and physical environment." Life is not conceived as being divisible into a distinct series of categories; the parts into which we divide it are in truth inseparable aspects. All absolutist norms go by the board in favor of dynamic standards evolved from free experience; the concept of relatively introduces the need for a dynamic basis upon which to rest our intellectual judgments. Here, however, there is none of the philosophical pessimism which attended the mechanistic theory of life. "Life itself may mean nothing, but our illusions and our aspirations have a meaning independent of the data around which they crystallize."

"The Fine Art of Living" is fundamentally the credo of a modern intellectual, a guide for the orientation of the individual to the universe in which he lives. The old absolutist have been broken in the light of modern science and the scale of values of the new personality will be molded out of human experience. More than that, it will be a dynamic personal ethics based on inner sanction rather than upon external authority. The arts will play a dominant role in the good life because humanity has found the chief means to the end which the individual may transcend himself. This leads inevitably to an inspection of the particular arts—music, painting, literature. Mr. Goldberg analyzes each

FIRE CAPTAIN, ABSENT 3 DAYS, ON WAY HOME

to Nerve Strain Over Writing Book.

Fire Captain William Riley of Engine Company No. 50, Newstead and Duncan avenues, will return today from Newark, N. J., after an unexplained absence of three days which his wife and 24-year-old son, Robert, think resulted from nervous strain caused by outside work on an automatic fire alarm and on a manuscript on fire prevention. He is under suspension but will receive a hearing from Fire Chief Alt.

Chief Alt said he understood Riley suffered a breakdown and would decide after talking to him whether to reinstate him. Riley told District Chief Ward before he left that he was not coming back and asked that his $1000 pension fund be turned over to his wife. When intercepted in full uniform by Newark police Sunday, Riley said, according to dispatches, that he had quarreled with his wife, was disgusted "with everything," and wanted to leave his job.

He was taken from a Pennsylvania train upon advice from St. Louis that he would be on it. He was released when inquiry developed there were no charges against him here and placed on a St. Louis train after being disarmed from continuing to New York.

"That's ridiculous," his wife, Catherine, said today. "There was no quarrel. He had been very nervous lately and had been working too hard on his fire alarm and his book. I'd been typing his manuscript. He left in his uniform without any luggage and I'm sure he was just dazed."

"He is on 24-hour duty every other day and when he didn't come home Saturday morning Robert and I went to Union Station, where we learned a fireman with a captain's badge had bought a ticket to New York. Then we notified police and found he had walked out of the engine house Friday night. Firemen didn't notice his absence until an alarm was tapped in. I just hope he'll be all right when he gets home."

Riley, who is 48 years old and lives at 4228 Odell street, has been with the Fire Department more than 20 years and is entitled to a pension.

MARKET STREET

100 feet, between Seventh street and Vandeventer avenue, with a cutoff and extension at the east end leading to Third and Walnut streets. The arrangement among the Government spokesmen, city officials and civic workers calls for widening Eighteenth street from 60 to 80 feet by taking 20 feet off the east side for two and a half blocks, between Chestnut street and a point south of Walnut street; the widening of Moore street from 30 to 80 feet by taking 50 feet off the west side for two blocks, between Market and Clark; the closing of Seventeenth street, now 80 feet wide, for two blocks, between Market and Clark and of Walnut street, now 50 feet wide, for one block, between Seventeenth and Eighteenth; and a cutoff to correct the jog between Seventeenth and Moore, at Market, probably to be built across private property on the north side of Market.

Ordinance Required.
While ordinances will be required to ratify the agreement concerning the streets, the city is morally committed to the arrangement, according to Acting Mayor Neun and Director of Streets and Sewers Brooks. At the direction of Mayor Miller, Brooks handled details of the negotiation, in which Neun and various civic workers and city representatives joined. The results were not made known until Sunday.

The addition to the post office is planned to meet the postal needs of the community for years to come. The post office occupies the block bounded by Eighteenth, Seventeenth and Walnut streets and Clark avenue, with the public lobby along the Walnut street and northern Eighteenth street sides. Although plans cannot be drawn until the site is acquired, it is believed the public section will be shifted to the Market street end of the addition, as the chief approach to the institution.

Postmaster Michener thinks it possible that an office unit several stories high, to accommodate several scattered postal departments, may be erected, facing Market street, and that the present structure may be remodeled to fit in with the eastern part of the addition to provide larger quarters. Facilities have been cramped for some time. The total site, as it will be enlarged, will measure about 425 by 760 feet. Congressman Cochran, thinks the roof eventually may be useful for landing mail airplanes.

Preparations of the Government are under way for condemnation of the block bounded by Twelfth, Eleventh, Market and Walnut streets as the site of the monumental new Federal Building, to house courts and offices. For this, $5,500,000 has been appropriated for construction and site, and it is hoped to keep the land cost down to $1,000,000.

The city has begun the purchase of property in the old Union Station Plaza, without awaiting completion of condemnation. This open space is to cover two blocks bounded by Eighteenth, Twentieth, Market and Chestnut streets. More than three-quarters of the property in Memorial Plaza has been acquired by the city. This plaza covers ten city blocks in irregular outline, largely lying between Market and Olive streets and between Twelfth boulevard and Fifteenth street. It includes the site of the proposed $5,000,000 Municipal Auditorium, on the south side of Market street, between Fourteenth and Fifteenth street, for which bond funds are available.

Among notable public buildings in the immediate vicinity, besides the projected Federal structures and Union Station, are the City Hall, the Municipal Courts Building, the Civil Court House, the new Police Headquarters, the new Coroner's Court, the new Municipal Service Building, Central Library, the Children's Building and City Jail. It is planned to lay out ter paving on Clark avenue, now 80 feet wide, when the viaduct is built across the station yards.

Bottled Sunshine Builds

Strong Little Backs Straight Little Legs
Fine Full Chests

Well Shaped Heads
Good Jaws and Chin
Sound Even Teeth

Authorities on baby care are telling mothers that a plentiful supply of one essential factor must be provided if bones and teeth are to develop strong and sound.

This factor—Vitamin D—should be supplied even though your baby is breast-fed; even though he is plump and rosy and the picture of health.

This needed protection is obtainable from two common sources—sunshine and good cod-liver oil. It is almost impossible, however, to get enough sunshine on the bare skin to be of benefit. Clothing, clouds, fog and smoke prevent it. Even ordinary window glass filters out the ultra-violet rays. Physicians therefore advise, as the most dependable protection, the daily use of Bottled Sunshine—good cod-liver oil.

In urging cod-liver oil as a way to avoid future trouble, thousands of physicians advise, "Use Squibb's Cod-Liver Oil." They specify Squibb's because it is very rich in two essential vitamins—Vitamin D, the "sunshine vitamin" which helps to build good bones and teeth, and in Vitamin A which increases resistance to many infections.

Your physician knows that Squibb's Cod-Liver Oil is vitamin-tested and vitamin-protected and that it will help build teeth and bones for your baby. You can get both Squibb's Plain and Mint-flavored Cod-Liver Oil at all good drug stores.

EX-MAYOR, POLICE HEAD TO PRISON IN LIQUOR PLOT

Former East Chicago, Ind., Officials Get Two Years and $2000 Fine — 12 Others Sentenced.

By the Associated Press.
HAMMOND, Ind., March 4. — Former Mayor Raleigh P. Hale of East Chicago was sentenced by Judge Thomas W. Slick in United States District Court yesterday to serve two years in Federal prison and to pay a fine of $2000 for his part in the alleged East Chicago liquor conspiracy.

A like sentence was imposed upon former Police Chief James Egan after Judge Slick denied their motions for new trial. Notice of intention to appeal was filed. Martin Zarkovitch, former Chief of Detectives at East Chicago, and Fatsy Ramsey, former detective, were sentenced to two years in prison and to pay fines of $500 each. The latter two also announced intention of appeal.

Other defendants in the case were sentenced as follows: Brice Chandler, Negro, and alleged vice overlord, two years in prison and $2000 fine on the conspiracy conviction and another two years for conviction of a Jones law violation, the terms to run consecutively.

Eldridge White and Sanford Overall, Negroes, four months in jail and $100 fine each.

Enrique Ortiz and Bertha Popp, six months in jail and $1000 fine each.

Tom Thomas and Joseph de Angelo, six months in jail and $500 fine each.

John Antonion and Tony Yaleski, one year and a day and $1000 fine each.

Miss Popp and Yaleski also were sentenced to one year and a day for liquor law violations.

Chandler told the Court that the former vice situation was a "shake down" in which Phil Collenger, reputed Chicago gangster, collected tribute. After hearing Chandler, Judge Slick refused a request of Collenger's attorney for immediate sentence, saying he wanted to investigate the matter. Collenger's bond of $25,000, the highest of the defendants, was maintained.

Before imposing sentence, Judge Slick listened to a day's argument by defense attorneys on pleas for a new trial. Chief among the grounds alleged were the statement that a "fair trial was not obtained in view of inflammatory, incompetent and prejudicial testimony" and that the charges of conspiracy had not been proven.

GETS YEAR FOR NON-SUPPORT OF WIFE AND 3 CHILDREN
Fruit Peddler Had Refused to Leave Home She Bought With Savings.

Alberto Lococo, a fruit peddler, 1809 Leffingwell avenue, was sentenced to a year in the workhouse for failure to support his three minor children by Judge Butler in Court of Criminal Correction today.

His wife, Jennie, testified he had given her virtually no money for three or four years and that she had supported herself and her children on $18 a week earned by sewing in a Washington avenue factory.

With this income, she said, she saved $500 which she paid down on the Leffingwell property. Lococo, she testified, induced her to have the title made out jointly and then went to live with her, refusing to leave on the ground that he was part owner. Mrs. Lococo then moved to 3001 Cass avenue, where she now resides, and gave Lococo $100 to have the title returned to her name, she said. He made the transfer but refused to move out, she told Judge Butler.

"Will you move out now?" the Court asked Lococo.

"No," Lococo replied.

"Then we'll have to move you," said the Court, passing sentence.

A divorce suit is pending against Lococo. He is 35 and Mrs. Lococo 37 years old. The children are a boy, 14, and two girls, 13 and 10.

sowing. While this is 2,000,000 pounds short of the expected yield, the Soviet Cabinet regards it as a great victory for the Government's collectivization campaign.

The announcement said further that the Government had given 25,000,000 pounds of seeds from its reserve to the collective farms of certain regions where the crops failed last year.

The Government plans to increase the area of land under wheat by 25 per cent during the current year and has appealed to members of collective farms to unite their forces in order to carry out the plan.

AVOID THAT FUTURE SHADOW*

By refraining from over-indulgence

Men who would keep that trim, proper form, women who prize the modern figure with its subtle, seductive curves—eat healthfully but not immoderately. Banish excessiveness—eliminate abuses. Be moderate—be moderate in all things, even in smoking. When tempted to excess, when your eyes are bigger than your stomach, reach for a Lucky instead. Coming events cast their shadows before. Avoid that future shadow by avoiding over-indulgence if you would maintain that lithe, youthful figure.

Lucky Strike, the finest Cigarette a man ever smoked, made of the finest tobacco—The Cream of the Crop—"IT'S TOASTED." Everyone knows that heat purifies and so "TOASTING" not only removes impurities but adds to the flavor and improves the taste.

Your Throat Protection—against irritation—against cough.

*Be Moderate!... Don't jeopardize the modern form by drastic diets, harmful reducing girdles, fake reducing tablets or other quack "anti-fat" remedies condemned by the Medical profession! Millions of dollars each year are wasted on these ridiculous and dangerous nostrums. Be Sensible! Be Moderate! We do not represent that smoking Lucky Strike Cigarettes will bring modern figures or cause the reduction of flesh. We do declare that when tempted to do yourself too well, if you will "Reach for a Lucky" instead, you will thus avoid over-indulgence in things that cause excess weight and, by avoiding over-indulgence, maintain a modern, graceful form.

TAXPAYERS LOSE SUIT OVER COUNTY ROAD BOND ISSUE

Group Headed by George
W. Baumhoff Had Sought
Force Court to Appoint Highway Commission.

By the Jefferson City Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.
JEFFERSON CITY, March 4.—A suit by the Taxpayers' League of St. Louis County and several property owners, to restrain the St. Louis County Court from exercising jurisdiction over expenditure of a $10,000,000 county road bond issue for highways and to compel the County Court to appoint a County Highway Commission, was thrown out today by the Missouri Supreme Court en banc because the petitioners instituted the wrong kind of suit.

The petitioners sought a writ of prohibition against the County Judges. The Supreme Court ruled that the petitioners had mistaken their legal remedy, for, if any recourse existed, it would be through a mandamus proceeding. The opinion held out little encouragement for a mandamus suit for the Supreme Court ruled that the County Court had not exceeded its jurisdiction.

The petition was filed by the League and five property owners, headed by George W. Baumhoff, chairman of the Executive Committee of the league. The Supreme Court was asked for a writ of prohibition until the Court appointed a County Highway Commission, as provided by a law passed by the 1927 Legislature, and until approval of the proposed roads was obtained from the State Highway Commission.

Appointment of a county highway commission of four members, in each county of Missouri, to designate, construct and maintain a 100-mile system of farm-to-market roads in each county was provided by the 1927 act. The St. Louis County Court refused to appoint a commission and stated in its reply to the suit that it would not appoint such a commission. The County Court retained full jurisdiction over the road bond issue and the road plans.

Judge Frank E. Atwood, who wrote the opinion, said:

"County courts have general jurisdiction of the subject matter of county roads and bridges and of county bond issues for such purposes. Whatever the jurisdiction of the County Highway Commission may be under the act of 1927, until such commission is appointed and the county highway system contemplated by the act is designated, it cannot be said that the County Court, in pursuing the activities above mentioned, has exceeded its jurisdiction."

Judge Atwood ordered discharge of the preliminary rule of prohibition the Supreme Court issued after the suit was filed in June 1929. All of the other Judges concurred, except Judge R. F. Walker, who was absent because of illness.

MRS. HELEN HEMINGWAY DIES

Mrs. Helen Gerault Hemingway, died last night at the home of her son, W. Linn Hemingway, 7711 Maryland avenue, vice president of the Mercantile-Commerce Trust Co., after an illness of several years.

Funeral services for Mrs. Hemingway, who was the 58-year-old widow of the former Arkansas Supreme Court Justice William E. Hemingway and had lived with her son for the last eight years, will be held at the Presbyterian Church at Little Rock, Ark., tomorrow afternoon.

DR. FRANK E. MURPHY WED
MISS ERA CHAPMAN FEB. 21

Dr. Frank E. Murphy, physician with offices in the Missouri Theater Building, and Miss Era Chapman, a former employee of the State Department of Labor and Industrial Statistics here, were married Feb. 21, by Justice of Peace Stecker in East St. Louis, it was announced yesterday.

Dr. Murphy was divorced Dec. 4, 1929, from Mrs. Virginia Murphy, a daughter of J. J. Burke, 84 Aberdeen place, president of the J. J.
Burke Jewelry Co., for general indignities. She testified that she and Murphy were married Sept. 9, 1919 and separated in January,
1923. In granting her the decree,

the Court awarded her custody of their twin children, 9 years old,
and $150 a month for their support. Murphy did not contest.
The present Mrs. Murphy, under a former name of Era Lesser, resigned from the Department of Labor and Industrial Statistics in May, 1929. Dr. and Mrs. Murphy
now reside at the Kenrick Square Apartments, 2953 Lindell boulevard.

FIRST BARGE LINE PACKET OF SEASON

The Mobile Arrives From New Orleans 11 Hours Ahead of Schedule.

The 1930 Mississippi River season opened today with the arrival in St. Louis of the fast packet Mobile of the Federal barge line from New Orleans at 6 a. m., 11 hours ahead of schedule, with a capacity cargo of 1351 tons.

The barge line terminals at municipal docks, extensively improved since last season, began today to receive freight for the Mo-bile's departure for New Orleans at 5 p. m. Friday. For the three-month winter season, when the channel immediately below St.
Louis is ice-blocked, Cairo becomes the northern terminus, but shippers whose freight is transferred between barge and railroad at Cairo continue to receive full benefit of the 26 per cent rate saving offered to users of the river.

A fast tow service, virtually equaling the speed of the packets with the additional advantage of double capacity or more, proved so successful last year that it will be continued. The first of these threebarge express tows will depart next Tuesday, scheduled to arrive in New Orleans on March 18, but expected to arrive a day earlier.

Three shillings a week will make up the schedule between St. Louis and New Orleans, with intermediate stops at Cairo, Memphis, Helena, Vicksburg and Baton Rouge.
The third service, a heavy "cleanup" tow of four barges or more, as traffic warrants, will make its first departure from St. Louis on Saturday, March 15, on a nine-day schedule to New Orleans.

Despite sharpening rail competition, the Federal management expects a big year. In the first cargo to St. Louis for the year, the Mobile, approaching a fast freight schedule, carried the equivalent of several loaded freight trains—237 carsloads.

Imports included 227,000 pounds
of burlap for Kansas City and 169-000 pounds for Minneapolis, cocoa for Wichita, coffee and burlap for Omaha, fiber for Clinton, Ia.; raw sugar for St. Joseph and Sioux City, coffee and cocoa beans for Chicago, pest moss for Remington,
Ind., and rice for Battle Creek, Mich.

WE have never forgotten for a mo-

depends on Chesterfield's taste.
Take mildness, for instance; Chesterand if you "know your cigarettes," you know that's not an ordinary fragrance, and that mellow tobacco richness that marks good tobaccos and good blending—and you have the simple Chesterfield formula for un-

CARNERA, EYE CLOSED IN FIFTH ROUND, KAYOES CLARK IN THE SIXTH

ITALIAN GIANT GIVEN HARDEST FIGHT SINCE HE ARRIVED IN U.S.

By the Associated Press.
PHILADELPHIA, March 4.—Primo Carnera, the man mountain from Italy, had another knockout victim to his growing list today, and was some $10,000 richer by reason of his victory over Roy (Ace) Clark, towering Philadelphia Negro.

Clark, an inch and a half taller than his foe, though 27 pounds lighter, was rocked to sleep in the sixth round last night, when Primo's pondering right crashed against his jaw. Twice in the fourth Carnera had found the range and Clark went down for counts of eight and nine.

Carnera found Clark tougher than any of his seven preceding opponents, all of whom he knocked out inside of two rounds. Primo took a considerable pasting himself from the hard-hitting Negro, and in the fifth and early part of the sixth, when the battle seemed to be going against him, kept boring in with both fists flying.

Italian's Eye Closed.
Two vicious rights closed Primo's left eye completely, but he merely grinned and kept on trying. Between rounds, the club physician examined the damaged optic and said he would let the fight go one more round, despite Carnera's protest that he was all right.

Half-blinded, he shook off Clark's heavy shots, when the sixth opened, and as the fans shouted to stop the fight, he waded in and smothered Clark with pile-driving blows.

Ace wilted under the attack and a savage hook knocked him off his feet. Clark was through, and the Venetian, battle-scarred for the first time since his American invasion, had shown that he could "take it," if necessary.

The unofficial attendance figures were 10,000 and receipts about $35,000. Carnera's share, it was said, would be between $10,000 and $12,000.

EVENING TIME IS AD TIME

If you are an advertiser, or an advertising man, you undoubtedly, like most other men, have a habit of reading in the leisure hours of the evening. For after the activities of a strenuous day, you seek the restful quiet of your home... you sink into a comfortable chair... relax... and reach for the evening paper...

You read unhurriedly... And in this receptive mood, you unconsciously weigh the appeals of advertisements that interest you. It is ad time... evening time...

A decided contrast to morning time, when you swallow a cup of coffee, and glance at the news while rushing off to work.

READ ADS IN THE POST-DISPATCH

The most interesting array and the greatest volume of advertising appears regularly in the Post-Dispatch. Most Advertisers Concentrate the bulk of their advertising in this One Big Newspaper because it produces by far the most profitable response to their advertising messages.

EIELSON AIR CORTEGE ARRIVES AT TELLER

By the Associated Press.
NOME, Alaska, March 4.—The bodies of Carl Ben Eielson and Earl Borland, Arctic flyers, have been taken to Teller by airplane from the motor ship Nanuk, ice-bound near Cape North, Siberia. The plane was piloted by Ed Young, with Pilot Joe Crosson and Mechanic Sam Macaulay as passengers. The Russian aviator, Commander Mavrick Slipenov and Mechanic Farich, followed in another plane.

Eielson and Borland, who lost their lives while flying from Alaska to the Nanuk last November, were engaged in removing passengers and furs from the ice-locked ship when disaster overtook them. Their bodies were found only after three months of searching. Honors will be paid to Eielson, who, with Sir George Hubert Wilkins, made a flight across the top of the world from Point Barrow to Spitzbergen in 1925.

The aerial cortege will continue to Fairbanks, where Ole Eielson, father of the dead aviator, and Borland's widow and two sons are awaiting them. The bodies will then be taken by train and ship to Seattle. Eielson will be buried at Hatton, N. D., and a guard of honor from his home State will accompany his body from Seattle. Borland will be buried at Mount Vernon, Wash.

1,751,740 LINES MORE

Than Were Carried by the Third Newspaper

And 433,540 Lines MORE Than the THREE OTHER St. Louis Newspapers Combined

Concentration in the POST-DISPATCH has become so much more profitable to dealers in Real Estate and others who place real estate advertising, that the use of the Post-Dispatch exclusively is a resultful, economic practice growing more and more popular.

First in St. Louis Circulation

Taking 1st Place in Real Estate Advertising and Holding It

In 1923—the Post-Dispatch for the first time in history took first place in Real Estate advertising with a total of 7,000 lines over the second newspaper. Even this small lead was an achievement considering the fact that the other newspapers had led in this class of advertising for a quarter of a century.

In 1924—the Post-Dispatch increased its lead over the second newspaper 142,020 lines.

In 1925—the Post-Dispatch increased its lead over the second newspaper 150,960 lines.

In 1926—the Post-Dispatch increased its lead over the second newspaper 576,120 lines.

In 1927—the Post-Dispatch increased its lead over the second newspaper 690,260 lines.

In 1928—the Post-Dispatch increased its lead over the second newspaper 808,480 lines.

In 1929—the Post-Dispatch increased its lead over the second newspaper 896,740 lines.

The increase for 1929 is 86,360 lines greater than for the year 1928.

The Post-Dispatch Carries a Far Greater Number of Real Estate Advertisements and a Far Greater Volume Than All Other St. Louis Newspapers Combined.

AN INDIAN WEDDING

Behind the Screens

The Latest News and Gossip of the Film Actors in Hollywood Appears in the Daily Magazine of the Post-Dispatch Every Tuesday and Thursday and in the Sunday Drama Section.

HOLLYWOOD, March 5.—The appearance of depression contrasts to his one-time continual smile. He still holds some hope of regaining his former position as one of the funniest comedians.

Recoos A. R. Buckle's friends hope an attempt soon to bring him back to the screen will meet with success.

Arbuckle, who ranked among the top-notchers for many years, has been interested in several business ventures here in the last few years. Both his night club and cafe failed. He is said to have directed a few comedies and he has helped suggest funny situations for others.

JAMES CRUZE, the producer-director who is one of Arbuckle's staunchest friends, believes he can make a comeback. He has a comedy story ready, and shooting is to start within a few weeks.

So far as can be learned, Cruze has made no attempt to determine what reaction a picture starring Arbuckle would receive. If he has apparently is convinced that it will be successful.

Despite the plans for him, Arbuckle doesn't seem to be any too enthusiastic. One guesses Cruze has more faith in him than he has in himself.

ASIMILE that appeared in a recent collection, "as deceiving as a retouched photograph," originated in Hollywood and it is not merely a figure of speech.

Every Hollywood photograph is skillfully and carefully retouched. Facial defects, wrinkles and freckles are removed every day from pictures of some of the most beautiful stars.

Photography, too, often deceives. Several stars must pose in certain positions to conceal unbecoming features. Photographers study stars' faces to avoid picturing them to disadvantage.

THE motion picture camera is as full of tricks and deceptions as the portrait camera. It can make mightily men who aren't so mighty look like giants. Properties and sets are made smaller, too, if the effect is to be exaggerated.

Douglas Fairbanks, who is only about five feet eight inches tall, and other cinema heroes under six feet, like Warner Baxter, Jack Muhlall, Richard Barthelmess, Harold Lloyd, Ramon Novarro and John Gilbert, are usually put in the foreground in close-up shots.

Other players are put slightly in the background and the camera is operated from a lowered tripod, making the chief character look larger.

In winter time especially, the dress may be made of a dark fabric that cannot be laundered. After it is worn a few times it becomes laden with dust and dirt and a varied assortment of germs. It is to this that some physicians attribute the increase in certain skin diseases among women.

That is why many women prefer washable fabrics for most of their smartest winter clothes. Another alternative is to have on hand several washable linings that fit the form closely and protect the back, shoulders and chest from the exposed garments. These may be bought or made up at home by the handy woman. It is a simple matter to wash them with soap and water when they become soiled and to tuck them into place again.

The first newspaper published south of the Potomac River, the Virginia Gazette, has been revived in Williamsburg, Va.

AN inventor recently perfected a glass for automobiles that is both opaque and transparent, depending entirely on how you look through it.

He hopes to sell a new set of windshields and door glasses, made of his glass, to modest movie stars. The glass, he claims, would allow occupants of an automobile to look out, but those without could not look in.

Which all may be very well—if the inventor can find those Hollywood celebrities who are the shrinking violets they say they are.

ACTORS of foreign birth, for a while considered hopelessly out of the American talkies because of their accents, are coming into their own now, not only because the talkies are finding many roles requiring them, but also because foreign versions of English-speaking talkies loom increasingly large on the Hollywood production horizon.

Norton, whose real name is Bir-Lindwig Berger, Ernst Lobisch and Lothar Mendel, all Germans, have fared equally well.

Paul Fejos, Michael Curtis and Alexander Korda, Hungarians, and others, and Lewis Milestone, native of Russia, also has made the transition from silence to dialogue with ease. Another example is Louis Gasnier, Parisian, who has been in pictures since their beginnings.

"DRESS girl" in the vernacular of the casting office, is a shapely, good-looking young star who wears clothes well, besides having them to wear.

Usually the "carer" of such an extra is rather short-lived, either because the expense of keeping a wardrobe in style is too great for the income derived from extra work, or because beauty is fleeting.

WHATEVER becomes of foreign actors, however, the talkies seem to have had little effect on the prowess of Hollywood's foreign directors.

Josef von Sternberg, born and educated in Vienna, continues successful in the new regime, and Lindbergh, Ernest Lubitsch and Lothar Mendel, all Germans, have fared equally well.

"DRESS girl" in the vernacular of the casting office, is a shapely, good-looking young star who wears clothes well, besides having them to wear.

Usually the "carer" of such an extra is rather short-lived, either because the expense of keeping a wardrobe in style is too great for the income derived from extra work, or because beauty is fleeting.

THE motion picture camera is as full of tricks and deceptions as the portrait camera. It can make mightily men who aren't so mighty look like giants. Properties and sets are made smaller, too, if the effect is to be exaggerated.

IN winter time especially, the dress may be made of a dark fabric that cannot be laundered. After it is worn a few times it becomes laden with dust and dirt and a varied assortment of germs. It is to this that some physicians attribute the increase in certain skin diseases among women.

THAT is why many women prefer washable fabrics for most of their smartest winter clothes. Another alternative is to have on hand several washable linings that fit the form closely and protect the back, shoulders and chest from the exposed garments. These may be bought or made up at home by the handy woman. It is a simple matter to wash them with soap and water when they become soiled and to tuck them into place again.

He hopes to sell a new set of windshields and door glasses, made of his glass, to modest movie stars. The glass, he claims, would allow occupants of an automobile to look out, but those without could not look in.

ACTORS of foreign birth, for a while considered hopelessly out of the American talkies because of their accents, are coming into their own now, not only because the talkies are finding many roles requiring them, but also because foreign versions of English-speaking talkies loom increasingly large on the Hollywood production horizon.

The latest evidence of this revived interest in foreign-born talent is a contract signed recently by Barry Norton.

Norton, whose real name is Bir-Lindwig Berger, Ernst Lobisch and Lothar Mendel, all Germans, have fared equally well.

Paul Fejos, Michael Curtis and Alexander Korda, Hungarians, and others, and Lewis Milestone, native of Russia, also has made the transition from silence to dialogue with ease. Another example is Louis Gasnier, Parisian, who has been in pictures since their beginnings.

Without Regan to Keep Things Going the Champion Is Slow to Take Hold of His Work And His Handlers Find Him Hard to Get Along With.

COKE sat looking at the floor, very uncomfortable. He wanted to go out and see Regan but he was afraid Regan would make fun of him.

"Well," said Cahill, "I'll say one thing for him. He don't need no body to show him around. He's always got a meal-ticket. First it was Coke here, now it's O'Keefe and Speed De Angelo. I wouldn't waste no sympathy on a guy that won't be with us in the summer."

"You mark what I say," said Halloran. "If George Regan don't slow down on the pace he's going he won't be with us in the summer."

"He looks bad, that's a fact," said Cahill.

Coke got up.

"Well," he said, "I guess I'll be going. Drop out to the camp, Bat. Always glad to see you."

"Does that go for me, too, champ?" Halloran asked.

"Sure," said Coke. "Just drop out."

When Coke had gone, Cahill said:

"Kid, I wonder what the straight story about them two is?"

"Funny thing," said Cahill. "Regan's dead sure O'Keefe'll win."

"That's a pipe dream," said Halloran. "Coke'll left hook that guy out of the ring."

"I ain't so sure," said Cahill. "Coke's had a long lay-off and O'Keefe's as strong as an ox. If the odds are right I'm gonna put one grand on the Rattler for luck."

"Say," said Halloran, "I'm a poor man. Just hand me that grand and I'll save you the trouble of getting it up."

"Punish," said Cahill; "everybody always thinks a champion's a lot better than he is."

"Kiss that grand good-by," said Halloran.

WHEN Coke went out into the gymnasium, he saw Regan leaning against the wall, his hat on the back of his head, talking to Mandi. A strong light was streaming in through one of the big front windows and it fell full on Regan. Coke was startled. Regan looked so frail. He had always been skinny, of course. Coke's father said he had to stand twice as much as a shadow. But his face had always had a healthy, swarthy color, except when he was recuperating from a drunk, and his clothes had never actually hung on him. Now he looked like a convalescent.

Coke walked over to watch a couple of amateurs, who were pounding away at one another. He heard Mandi say, "No no; nothing doing." He heard Regan's retort. He saw Mandi turn on his heel and walk away; then he went over to Regan.

Regan pulled his hat down over his eyes and took out a cigar. "Smoke," he said. "No, thanks," said Coke. "I ain't smoking."

"Getting all set, are you?" Regan put the cigar back into his pocket and stood with his legs crossed, looking at Coke.

"You're fat as a hog," said Regan. "You're gonna have trouble with your weight for the first time in your life."

"That's about it," said Coke. "He wanted to ask Regan how much money he needed, but he was afraid to."

"Yeah," said Regan. "I figure you won't be in such good shape. O'Keefe'll be prime. He's gonna give you a lacing, Coke."

Coke didn't say anything.

"But course you don't think so," said Regan.

"No," said Coke.

Regan started drumming on the wall, looking at Coke.

"How'd you and the missus coming along?"

"All right," said Coke. "She's got a good part in Ivor Martin's new show."

"So I hear," said Regan. "Well, she'll be able to get along without you pretty soon, Coke; so get set to kiss her good-by."

"There you go," said Coke. "Dumb as ever," said Regan. "Then he stood away from the wall and nodded to Coke. "I got a heavy poker date for this afternoon, kid, so I'll be leaving you."

He started to walk away, but Coke called to him.

"George," he said, "I want to see you a minute."

"All right. Spill it."

"Say, George," said Coke flushing. "Don't get sore at me, but was you trying to borrow some money from Mandi?"

Regan stiffened. Coke knew he had said the wrong thing.

"What's it to you?" Regan exclaimed. "You tend to your business and I'll tend to mine."

He walked away. Coke saw him cross the long gymnasium and go into Halloran's office.

"Well," Coke told himself, "if that's the way he wants to act, he can go to hell!"

COKE was having trouble getting into shape. Jimmy Pappas and Jeff urged him to try drinking, for a while, at least, just to see if it could lose a lot of weight that way. But Coke wouldn't listen to them. When he was thirsty, he wanted water. He had had one theory, Jimmy Pappas conferred with Lewis, who smiled and shrugged, and put the full responsibility on Coke. Ruby Hall had one theory, Jimmy Pappas, and Jeff another; they spent half of their time arguing, while Coke sat listening to them, trying to make up his mind what to do.

Finally one day, he showed a loss of five pounds, after drinking plenty of water and eating a big meal.

"O K," said Ruby Hall. "Now we're getting some place. You just listen to me, champ, and you'll be in shape in no time."

Coke said nothing, but Jimmy and Jeff began to argue with Ruby, who defended himself loudly.

"My God!" yelled Coke. "Shut up, you guys. I can't hear myself think."

The next day Coke hurt his wrist sparring with Jeff. Jimmy Pappas bandaged it for him and they all held a conference in the rubbing-room. Coke listened for a while, then he got up and took a walk. He began to be worried. He was jinxed. Donaldson, the trainer he had hired, had got banged up in an automobile accident the second day at the camp. Buddy Dugan, his lightweight sparring partner, had been taken to the hospital for an appendicitis operation, and three days ago Ruby Hall had nearly drowned swimming in the bay.

THINGS were going very badly at the camp. The place was overrun with visitors and there was hardly a private spot to be found. Coke was always being followed and asked for his autograph, or for money, or wouldn't he please give some wonderful amateur a chance to show him what he could do. The newspaper men thought they owned the camp and did as they pleased. The cook would get drunk and forget to come back from town, and Coke would have to wait two hours for his supper, or something would happen to the lights just when Coke wanted to read and relax. Jimmy Pappas was a willing worker and he did his best to fill Donaldson's shoes, but he was erratic and pigheaded. Ruby Hall had to be kept well in hand or he became dictatorial. Even Jeff joined in the clamor.

"Some day I'm gonna slap them guys to sleep," said Coke.

THE WAY
A WOMAN

JUST ANOTHER.

ONE of the most interesting things about a great man—even a man as great as Abraham Lincoln—is the way he lived. One of the things that have made him so great is the way he lived. He was a man who was not afraid to be different. He was a man who was not afraid to be a leader. He was a man who was not afraid to be a hero. He was a man who was not afraid to be a saint. He was a man who was not afraid to be a god. He was a man who was not afraid to be a man.

THE double sets of models have given rise to a charge that couturiers are attempting to mystify buyers and that only a valet policy can pull Paris out of the quagmire in which she finds herself. The charge is that the couturiers are attempting to mystify buyers and that only a valet policy can pull Paris out of the quagmire in which she finds herself. Paris Is Anxious—But Why Worry

Couturiers Are Still Wrought Up Over the Length of Skirts and Fears Paris Will Lose Its Reputation as Dictator of Styles for the Rest of the World

By CORALIE VAN PAASSEN.

PARIS, Feb. 20. WITH Parisian hotels filling up with wholesale buyers from New York, London, Berlin, Vienna and Buenos Aires, the atmosphere in the offices of the fashionable dressmaking establishments is electric with apprehension and worry. Following the revolt of American women against unbecomingly long skirts emanating from the Rue de la Paix and the Place Vendôme, decrees longer skirts, the couturiers realize that the continuation of their dictatorship depends upon the attitude of the foreign buyers now in town for the semi-annual fashion show. In other words the decisive moment has arrived when it shall be known if Paris is to have another lease of life as the fashion capital of the world.

British buyers, so far, have proved the most uncooperative, declaring that if the couturiers are swayed in their creative endeavor by American tastes, of which there is marked evidence, they consider Paris to have abdicated from her traditional position of referee of international fashions and that they will turn their attention elsewhere. Declarations of leading dressmakers that they are unperturbed by the rumblings of a revolt on the part of feminine America, are flatly contradicted by the unusual eagerness to please American buyers and cater to their tastes. Several of the leading fashion houses have turned out two or even more distinct sets of models for the coming season, leaving the way open for foreign buyers to reject a style which does not seem suitable to the taste of their clientele at home.

Generally speaking, the designers seem chiefly undecided as to whether they want to make women look like cornucopias or Broadway skyscrapers. Baronne Accotto, guiding spirit of the house of Armand, gave out the startling news: "I have arranged to show six skirt lengths." Whether these six differing skirt lengths are to coincide with the different functions of the day will be discovered only when this house has its opening.

No Need for Wholesome Foods
to be Unpalatable

Doctors are not as severe regarding diet as they are often charged with being. To be sure they insist that wholesome foods be eaten and emphatically advocate a balanced diet. But they do not oppose making foods palatable. In flavoring vegetables, or modifying the sharpness of certain fruits, doctors and dietitians recommend the use of sugar. A dash of sugar on cereal is also permitted. Such use of sugar increases the value of the wholesome, body-building nutrients in the food thus flavored.

A dash of sugar to a pinch of salt is a popular rule to follow in seasoning peas, carrots, spinach, and string beans. It is surprising how the sugar in this mixture maintains the delicious flavor these vegetables have when fresh-picked. These suggestions regarding sugar apply to children's diet as well as adults'. Good food promotes health. Most foods are more delicious and nourishing with sugar. The Sugar Institute.

Archbishop of Paris, Cardinal Verdier, that he favors the short skirt. It is not unmodest, he believes, and is certainly far more practical than the ground-brushing style of the past. In a general way the Cardinal's opinion goes flatly against the new style evolved in the Rue de la Paix, which the designers are seeking to perpetuate, although camouflaging their real intentions by sowing confusion.

THE result of the first timid showings is that if any woman seriously sought to follow what has been shown she would look fit for a masquerade ball. That there is a widespread shortage of the type of mannequin whose anatomy is flexible enough for all the new designs is not surprising. So great is the mannequin shortage and so intense the French professional jealousy that lightening strikes have been directed against two of the English designers showing their spring collections to the wholesale buyers here. Just before the "opening" the mannequins walked out, although the wages being paid by the English houses were in excess of those usually paid by the French firms. The strikes failed, for volunteer girls came to the rescue at the last minute.

By GERTRUDE WOODCOCK.

PARIS may devise new silhouettes to throw the feminine world into a panic, but it takes the college student to turn the tables and cause beads of perspiration to appear on the foreheads of those gentlemen known vaguely as "manufacturers." After all, Paris has a kindly feeling for the clothing trade. Its creations inspire hope for increased sales. They are good for business. The college girl, however, has a peculiar knack for creating a smart trick or dress which, all too frequently, holds out nothing but despair for those whose money is made in appeasing the feminine through the preparatory schools and high schools until, at last, it reached the offices and streets. By that time the shops were equipped to meet the demand, but too late—the "monkey jacket" was "out" on the campus and something else was "in."

PREACHERS can no longer rant at the immodesty of thinly clad legs; visiting lecturers will no longer be disconcerted by slim, silken knees—for a time, at any rate, college legs will be stoutly covered. Whether or not this will spread remains to be seen. At any rate, it will not be of long duration, for no college fad lasts long enough for the general public to catch up upon it, let alone for "the trade" to make it into an asset.

THEY buy over 65 per cent of the soft shirts manufactured, explained a haberdasher, "so it isn't worth while to make up shirts with short collars. Besides, the college boys have made long collars the fashion." This to an earnest young man with conservative tastes and an uncommonly long neck. "Sorry," continued the haberdasher, "but you'll have to have your shirts made to order, or else," with his eye brightening, "you might be able to find some short-collared shirts in the basement of some of the stores. We've had to sell them all off cheaply."

And so it goes. There was the rafterless era and the sockless era, so it is no wonder that when the college Beau Brummel decrees a tangible style, the manufacturers make a deep bow and rush off in a frenzied effort to meet the demand. The rest of the clothes wearing populace can shift for itself.

Daily Story
FOR CHILDREN

By Mary Graham Bonner

The Mouse's Speech.

THE mice certainly had been playing for all they were worth and John and Peggy and the Little Black Clock had enjoyed watching them.

They were afraid to join in the games for there were so many mice and they were paying so little attention to anything except their games and their means that the children thought they might hurt the mice if they played, too. So they had been watching, and now one mouse had stood up in the center of the old barn and was about to make a speech.

"Don't forget," whispered the Little Black Clock, "that I turned the time 'way, way back."

The mouse squeaked for silence, and the other mice all sat about and watched the speaker mouse. There was absolute silence except for a little squeaking chuckle here and there when the mouse said something funny.

"We all know why we're having this wonderful party," the mouse said.

The other mice nodded their heads, twirled their whiskers and smiled out of their bright, dark little eyes.

"It is because that horrible cat has moved away. We do not need to fear him now—and until another cat has the rudeness and the lack of consideration to come around these parts we can have a good time."

"Ah, yes, when the cat's away"

Larger Cooking

When pies are made from meat and vegetables, it necessitates longer cooking which proves too much for the crust. In such cases it is well to cover the piepan with a plate. Cook until the pie is nearly done, then remove plate and add top crust. Return to the oven until the crust is nicely browned.

STOCK LIST TURNS DOWN LATE IN DAY AFTER BOOM

Cities Which Have Recently Been Recording New High Levels for Year Near Brunt of Selling.

SIEP TONE TO THE MONEY MARKET

More Shares Sell Up to New High Levels for Year in Forepart of Day.

Associated Press.
NEW YORK, March 4.—The market displayed a complete reversal of form today, selling off in the last hour after an earlier outburst of buying had carried more than 50 issues to new levels for the year. Public sales bore the brunt of the attack, many of the leaders dropping to nearly six points below yesterday's final quotations before this was checked on active short selling. Final quotations were irregularly lower, most of the early issues of one to five points in the issues being either cut down or converted into net declines.

Total stock sales ran above 3,000 shares, making it the second largest session of the year. Except for the further weakness in the commodity markets, with oil futures going to new low levels for the season, and reports of moderate falling off in steel relations, there was little in the news to explain the selling movement. The collapse of a few specialties, particularly Indian Petroleum, and a growing belief in the recent advance in many issues had fully discounted immediate prospects, probably were factors in the day's decline.

U. S. Steel Down 2 1/2 Points.
U. S. Steel common, which sold high as 18 1/2 in the early trading, broke to 17 1/2 and closed at 17, off 2 1/2 points net. Radio Corporation common, which closed at a new high for the year, sold at 49 at the close for a net gain of nearly 1 point.

Westinghouse Electric, which attained a 1930 peak at 19 1/4, closed at 18 1/4, for a net loss of 1 1/4. American Telephone, Kennecott Copper, Electric Service of New Jersey and Montgomery-Ward closed with net losses of a point or more, and Columbia Gas showed a net decline of 1/4.

Case closed with a net gain of 1/4 points at 27 1/4, after having sold at 26 1/4 and as low as 25 1/4. New York & Harlem showed net gain of 5 points at 90, after having sold as high as 83 1/2. Worthen Pump showed a net gain of 1 point at 10 1/4, after having sold at 9 1/4. Indian Motorcycle common sold at 10 1/4, off 4 1/4, after having sold down to 9, and the preferred closed 14 points lower at 10 1/4, after having been down to 9 1/4.

Man Kodak, Columbian Camera, American Power & Light, Brooklyn Union Gas, Allied Chemical, American Tobacco "R" and Reduction closed with net gains of 3 to 4 1/4 points.

Call Money Steady.
Call money held steady at 4 per cent all day, although funds were available in the outside market at 3 1/2 per cent. Time money rates were easier, 20 to 60-day maturities being quoted at 4 1/4 to 4 1/2 per cent against 4 1/4 to 4 1/2 per cent yesterday.

Foreign Exchange rates held steady, sterling cables ruling unchanged around $4.86 while Danish, pesetas made slight recovery from the low established yesterday. Japanese yen mounted to another new 1936 high at 49.25.

Wheat futures sold down more than 2 cents a bushel but made slight recoveries from the day's new levels. Corn declined about a cent a bushel. Cotton closed 11 to 15 cents a bale lower, with all active contracts settling new low levels for the season.

Stock prices, with other tables and market news, will be found on Pages 160, 161 and 170.
